New Pay System Undergoes Test; 2-a-Month Possible

By MONTE BOURJAILY Jr.

(Pictures on Page 27)

WASHINGTON.—Testing began this month at Fort Dix, N. J., on a flexible new Army pay system its designers expect to solve most of the serious faults in the present method of pay. An apparently unrelated move on Capitol Hill, meanwhile, also took form as possibly the first step in bringing semi-monthly pay periods to the Army—the only service which now pays once a month.

TWO YEARS' GRACE

Retirement Rule Eased

Officer Hikes Resume July 1

WASHINGTON.—The officer temporary promotion program will be resumed after July 1, it was indicated by G-1 officials this week, after a two-month delay.

Cause of the delay was the apparent reluctance of many officers to return to civilian life. More requests for category renewals were received, and accepted, by the Army than it expected. Losses predicted in the grades of captain, major and lieutenant colonel did not develop.

This meant that expected vacancies to which to promote men on existing recommended lists did not come about.

This combined with the order to reduce the strength of the Army, which was issued last December, has halted the temporary promotion flow.

The 1956 budget, which goes into effect on July 1, provides for a temporary officer promotion program for the following 12 months.

WASHINGTON.—Reserve component officers twice passed over for temporary promotion will be retained on active duty up to two years if, at time of pass-over, they are within two years of qualifying for retirement under any provision of law, the Army has decided.

Assistant Army Secretary Hugh M. Milton II said he had approved this reversal of policy last week. He credited the reversal to JAG rulings on portions of the Officer Personnel Act. JAG ruled that for retirement purposes "service" included "constructive service" in considering retirement for integrated officers.

Effect of the new policy is to drop from the recent regulation on release of officers twice passed over for temporary promotion to captain, major and lieutenant colonel the requirement that only those would be retained on AD who had 18 years' active federal commissioned service. Key word is "commissioned."

Only condition preventing re- (See RETIREMENT, Page 10)

This occurred when the House Armed Services committee last week approved legislation repealing a requirement of the law that certain Army officers and all enlisted men be paid once a month. The action had been asked by the Air Force which, after a six-months' trial, has adopted the semi-monthly pay method.

If Congress approves the request, the last legal obstacle to twice-a-month pay for the Army will be removed.

Lt. Col. John M. Parker, head of a three-man team that helped develop the test to be run off at Dix, said that the new system would be completely adaptable to semi-

TACTICAL USE of tiny radios was tested last week at Fort Carson, Colo., by a group of Johns Hopkins scientists. The verdict is not yet in. The nine-ounce sets—one of which is shown strapped to the helmet of PFC John McBride, 61st Inf.—gets messages from a "tranceiver," which can both send and receive. Both types will net with other standard radios used by infantry.

MEDICARE DEAD

Career Laws Stalled

(See editorial, Page 8)

WASHINGTON.—As the 84th Congress goes into the last six weeks of its first session, five "key" service career proposals face varying fates.

- The dependent medicare bill is snarled up in medical politics.
- Permanent integration authority, including an increase of 4000 in the Army's Regular officer corps, has been blocked by a Defense study. Navy is getting an extension of their temporary integration authority.
- The service bill to permit classing some government quarters as "inadequate" will probably be considered by the House Armed Services committee. It would give occupants of inadequate quarters a full housing allowance, take back rent.
- Readjustment (severance) pay for reserve component officers forced off active duty is scheduled for study in the House committee. The Senate Armed Services committee has not decided if it will consider the bill this year.
- A law to permit retiring personnel, and some involuntarily separated, to choose the "home of retirement," stands a good chance of passage this year.

THERE ARE also a number of other important proposals before the Armed Services committees. Passage of some of the items above depends on how quickly Congress disposes of the revised National Reserve Plan now being restudied by the House committee, the military public works bill, and similar items.

Apparently dead for this year is the medicare plan. Defense officials predicted in mid-May that a revised bill, acceptable to the services and Congress, would be ready for the Hill by June 15. The bill has still to get to the Hill. Reports are that the new proposal is not acceptable to the American Medical Assn.

The House committee is content to wait for Defense to come up with something supported by all elements of the Administration. The Senate committee, if the proposal comes soon, will try to consider it this year. But most Congressional sources have given up the idea of revising dependent medicare before the 2d Session of this Congress, which will not begin until 1956.

Joint-Service Team Formed To Probe MD-Draft Dilemma

WASHINGTON.—The Pentagon has ordered a crack joint-service officer team to probe exhaustively the doctor-dentist staffing dilemma and recommend specific moves to keep doctors in service. The officer group will report its findings, to include both legislative and administrative proposals, to Defense Secretary Wilson by Aug. 20.

As pressure mounts to end the doctor draft, military doctors in increasing numbers are refusing to remain in service beyond minimum tours. The ranks of the Regular medical officers are thinning. Adequate medical care for servicemen, to say nothing of dependents, is threatened.

That is a thumbnail sketch of the background of what service officials consider one of the most serious personnel problems confronting the military services today.

Rear Adm. E. W. Grenfell heads the joint-service study group. It is the same committee which monitored the pay bill to victory and more recently worked closely with law makers now considering survivor benefits legislation.

SOME OF THE THINGS the team is exploring, as devices to (See JOINT, Page 10)

Plan to Up Army by 88,000 Gets Brush-off in Senate

WASHINGTON.—The Army's lack of political vote-appeal was again pointed up this week when the Senate failed even to consider a proposal to add funds to the 1956 Defense Department appropriations bill to add 88,000 men to the Army during the coming year.

But the Senate adopted by one vote a move to keep the Marine Corps at its June 30, 1955, strength.

Sep. Stuart Symington (D., Mo.) said he would offer three amendments to the bill. These were to: (1) prevent the reduction of the Marine Corps below its June 30, 1955, strength (adopted by a vote of 40 to 39); (2) provide funds for increased production of "Century series" jet fighters for the Air

Army Times Wins ROA Merit Award

WASHINGTON.—Army Times this week was awarded the Reserve Officers Association's "Certificate of Merit" for "spearheading the fight to equalize benefits between Reservists and Regulars."

The award was accepted at the ROA National Convention banquet in Boston June 24 by Tony March, editor, acting for the staff.

Advantages Of Chemical War Cited

HOUSTON, Tex. — The Army's top chemical officer said the potential threat from germ and chemical warfare is as great as the danger from atomic weapons.

Maj. Gen. William M. Creasy, Chief Chemical Officer, said that in an all-out war an enemy would want to save the productive facilities of this nation and therefore might concentrate his assaults on people rather than on machines.

"The hazard is insidious," Creasy declared in a speech prepared for the Texas Chemical Council, because "chemical and biological munitions are generally invisible in action, while the physical destruction weapons can be seen."

The general also spoke of the possible use by an enemy of chemical or biological agents that would affect people's brains and leave victims unable to do anything constructive toward a defense effort.

He said it is "questionable" that anyone has yet discovered the secret of how to use such mental derangement processes on a large scale, but said that "we must assume that any potential enemy would, in order not to overlook any factor in planning our defenses."

Noting that atomic weapons, high explosives and missiles causing physical destruction also destroy people, the general said that warfare by poisoning, sickness, radioactivity and mental derangement would destroy or weaken only people while leaving productive facilities intact for a victorious enemy to exploit.

Creasy listed several advances made by the Chemical Corps in developing means to protect people against various types of warfare.

Soldiers in Korea Show They CARE

PUSAN, Korea.—Military personnel in Korea purchased over $107,000 in CARE packages during 1954.

In only two other countries, the United States and Canada, did sales exceed those made in Korea.

Soldiers in Eighth Army and the Korean Communications Zone bought a total of 11,909 packages for Korean families, individuals and for orphanages and other institutions that their units sponsored. In the Korean Communications Zone, over $12,000 in CARE packages was given at Christmas time alone to unit-sponsored projects.

The $107,000 figure compares with the $23,000 raised in Operation Helping Hand and the $12,000 raised in the Red Cross drive.

Test Unit to Determine If Ranger Training Is Good for All Troops

FORT BENNING, Ga.—Thirty-five men and one officer are getting the works in an effort to find out whether traditional units can take Ranger training.

The special test platoon was picked because it was an average platoon. It has been designated the 1st Pltn. of B Co., 4th Inf. Bn. (Prov.), 7th I.C.C.—part of the 3d Inf. Div. stationed here. The results of the platoon's efforts could mean more rugged training for a large part of the Army.

The guinea pig platoon started its special Ranger training course with physical conditioning exercises and classes on survival and demolition. Then it moved down into the Florida swamps on the Gulf of Mexico, about 45 miles east of Pensacola. There it learned survival, battle techniques and ran field problems in the snake-infested marshes.

After the sojourn in the swamps, the platoon moved into the tail end of the Smoky Mountains about 100 miles north of Atlanta.

While in the mountains, the test unit learned to crawl across ravines on a single strand of rope and participated in "the death slide." This consists of a strand of rope stretched from a tree on a high cliff overlooking a deep lake. The ranger hooks onto the rope and jumps, reaching a speed of 70 miles per hour before plunging into the lake.

Throughout the training and tests, Ranger specialists will evaluate the platoon's performance. In addition, 1st Lt. John Ozaki of A Co., 4th Bn., is taking part in the test as a special evaluator.

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky. — An advance planning group from the 5th Inf. Div., Augsburg, Germany, arrived here by military air last week to tour Fort Campbell and confer with opposite staff members of the 11th Abn. Div. in preparation for the early 1956 Gyro-scope rotation of the two organizations.

The contingent is composed of Lt. Col. Martin A. Hagerstrand, officer in charge, Lt. Col. George D. Willets, Maj. John R. Boatwright, Mjt. Robert B. Hay, Maj. Carl W. Keuffer, Maj. Jack T. Moran Jr., Maj. Laurence A. Smith, Maj. Don-

In addition to the tours and planning conferences, the group visited the nearby communities of Hopkinsville, Ky., and Clarksville, Tenn.

West Coast Men Now Get Break At Seattle POE

SEATTLE, Wash. — When the USNS Marine Serpent arrived at the Seattle Port of Embarkation last week with troops from the Far East, Lt. Col. William A. Stephens, troop movement officer, took particular pride in watching returning veterans debark.

A few months ago Stephens noticed that many friends and relatives waited for their servicemen until nearly all troops had trudged down the gangplank. When those from the Pacific Northwest got off the ship there was very little time left to visit with relatives before having to board buses for Fort Lawton.

Stephens looked into the matter, and after a series of queries and approvals, permission was granted for West Coast men, whose relatives comprised the bulk of the "welcome committees" at dockside, to come off the ship first.

End of Lush Entertainment Program Is Forecast for Troops in Europe

NURNBERG, Germany. — Frills in the entertainment and recreation program for soldiers in Europe are on the way out.

Military economy caused by slashes in money contributed to the Army will trim the fat off the vast recreation, athletic and entertainment operated by the Special Activities Division here.

While details are not yet firm on the cuts to be made in the program, officials here are working out plans with top budget and administrative experts in Heidelberg; Seventh Army Hqs. in Stuttgart and in Area Command headquarters throughout Europe.

CUTS IN THE PROGRAM will not be restricted to Germany since many of the overhead costs involved in the recreation program throughout all of the Army's Europe command have been absorbed in a cover-all budget that previously included occupation costs, welfare fund money and some funds allocated by Congress for the operation or supervision of recreation programs.

The cuts now coming, therefore, are dependent upon a realigning of money and a general slash in the total budget earmarked for recreation.

Officials state that no specific information on the extent of the curtailments can be determined until budget shifts are made and studies on troop needs are completed.

Observers familiar with the operation of the recreation program, foresee no cuts in libraries operated throughout the entire command. Libraries are considered as one of the greatest morale items in the recreation budget and cannot be trimmed without a resultant loss in morale among troops and families.

It is expected that Service Club operations will be curtailed approximately 10 percent. The clubs to be closed will undoubtedly be those located in the center of cities and off-military posts.

The club cuts are being worked out on the area command level but SAD Hq. has recommended that clubs on posts be retained. The service club budget could be cut 10 percent by eliminating those large clubs now operating in the center of such cities as Frankfurt, Munich, Stuttgart and Nuremberg, they feel.

IT ALSO IS EXPECTED that there will be some cuts in the operation of craft and photo shops throughout the command. Many of the extras available in the line of additional equipment and supplies for the operation of these shops will be cut from future operating budgets but there is no large scale closing of these facilities in the picture.

The most important point noted by most officials concerned with the recreation cuts is that budget slashes affecting the soldier are minor in comparison to the cuts that are affecting the command as an entirety. Most cuts are coming across the board and affect command activities or families.

Fast-Thinking Corporal Averted Jap 'Incident'

CAMP GORDON, Ga. — Five years before Pearl Harbor, Maj. Lynwood A. Winslow looked down the doomsday end of a Japanese rifle. For what he did at that moment the veteran soldier, recently assigned as commanding officer of The Southeastern Signal School's 5th Bn here, received a special commendation from the Army.

It was in the Fall of 1936. The Japanese had just sunk the American gunboat, Panay, in China. Maj. Winslow and his unit, the 15th Inf. "Can Do" Regt. were on a train coming back to their base at Tientsin, China.

While the regiment's train was momentarily halted, a Japanese troop train pulled alongside. Maj. Winslow, then a corporal, noticed a fellow soldier snap a picture of the Japanese. A Japanese officer, with armed companions, raced over to the American train while others quickly surrounded it with a picket fence of rifles.

Hospitalized Sgt. Receives VIP Visitor

FORT BELVOIR, Va.—M/Sgt. Hurley Cargill, a patient at the Army Hospital here, had a visitor recently, and has added that date to a long list of "red letter" days.

The 35-year old sergeant's visitor was Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, for whom Sgt. Cargill has been cook and maitre d'hotel since Ridgway took over Quarters One, at Fort Myer, Va., in 1953.

Among other "red letter" days have been Sgt. Cargill's taking over household service with President (then General and Chief of Staff) Eisenhower; Gen. "Hap" Arnold, war-time head of the Air Force; Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer; and Gen. John Hull.

Soldiers of the 15th Regt. had been warned by their officers to take no pictures and sensing the danger of an "international incident," Maj. Winslow urged his fellow GIs to keep calm. He summoned his commanding officer.

Both camera and film were demanded by the Japanese officer. He had to settle for the film, which he destroyed. For his part in avoiding a conflict in the tense situation, Winslow received the commendation.

Wac's Career Notable for 3 Highlights

PFC ASTRIDA ZUTIS

CAMP KILMER, N. J. A pretty Latvian-born Wac, who came to the United States in 1951, has achieved three highlights in her life during 13 months of service, namely: "Miss Wac Trainee of the Year" for 1954; "A Wife"; and "A Citizen of the United States."

PFC Astrida Zutis, stationed here at Camp Kilmer, N. J. enlisted in the Wac April 28, 1954. Shortly thereafter she was selected "Wac Trainee of the Year" and reigned over a dance held at Fort Lee, Va., the former Wac basic training center. She was subsequently assigned here where she has been a laboratory technician at the Army hospital.

Here romance began for Astrida when she met her husband, AF Sgt. George A. Charles, who was then assigned to the 2225th Personnel Processing Group. They were married in California.

Last but not least Astrida anxious to become a citizen of the United States, has recently been sworn in.

Born on a farm near Zaube, Latvia, Pvt. Zutis lived there until she was eight years old. The Zutis family forced to leave when the Russians overran Latvia in War II, spent a few months in Germany, then moved into an American-sponsored DP camp, where they remained for more than six years. She, her parents, two brothers and a sister all came to this country in 1951.

Ex-War II Filipino Guerilla Is Sought-After Story Teller

HQ., 7TH DIV., Korea. — When it's story telling time in A Co., 32nd Inf., a favorite with the men for sages of War II is SFC Arthur G. Lopez.

Born in the Philippines, he came to the United States in 1928. In 1941 he was drafted into the Army and, with his background in consideration, was sent to a guerilla tactics school in Australia.

After graduation, Lopez was among 125 top men picked for a secret mission. Listed as missing in action because of the mission's importance, the men boarded submarines in early 1944. With the aid of guerillas they landed in a secret cove on Mindanao and immediately made their way inland.

Put in charge of a five-man patrol, Lopez' mission was to infiltrate into an enemy camp and report strength, gun emplacements and communications. As all the men were natives of the Philippines they had little trouble getting into the camp. In fact they were given passes by the "overlord" of the camp which admitted them anywhere. They were employed by the Japanese as general maintenance men.

The men spent 11 months on the islands before they were pulled out to report at Gen. MacArthur's headquarters in Brisbane, Australia. The day they left, American bombers blasted that particular enemy camp, along with other installations the men had pointed out.

THE MILITARY SCENE

Reserve Plans Too Complex

By GEORGE FIELDING ELIOT

THE principal item of unfinished military business at this session of Congress continues to be the Reserve program. For the past few days there has been a lot of scurrying around in the Pentagon under Presidential pressure to get something moving on the Reserve front.

Unhappily, the Navy and the Air Force continue to regard any direct entry of young men into Reserve or National Guard units as a dangerous subtraction from the pool of prospective four-year recruits for their regular services.

One result of this attitude showed up during the week while the Senate Armed Services Committee was considering the renewal of the Selective Service Act, already approved by the House.

The House provisions included a reduction of the term of service for young men between the ages of 17 and 18½ who enlist in the National Guard and thereby remain exempt from being drafted as long as they perform their National Guard service satisfactorily: under the terms of the act as passed by the House, this obligation would extend only to their 26th birthday, that is, to the end of the term of their liability to the draft anyway.

The Department of Defense, apparently acting under Navy and Air Force pressure, asked the Senate committee to extend this term to age 30: no doubt to make the alternative of National Guard service less attractive to kids, who might therefore decide to join the Navy or Air Force for four years to avoid being drafted into the Army.

AS AN EXAMPLE of tortuous pseudo-psychology, this one is hard to beat. Certainly it would have the effect of sharply cutting down voluntary enlistments of youngsters in the National Guard: 11½ to 13 years is a long long time to sign up for, considering that the National Guardsman is high man on the totem pole for emergencies anywhere in the world.

But just as certainly this would be of little or no benefit to the Navy and the Air Force. In fact one of the biggest complaints about the youngsters who now join the National Guard is that after staying in for a year or two, they go off and enlist in one of the regular services just when they are becoming useful to their Guard unit.

Thus the Guard acts as a recruiting ground for the regular services. Make the Guard unattractive by extending the term of obligation, and the net result is that the majority of lads who might otherwise join the Guard and acquire a taste for military life will simply sit the deal out and hope that the draft won't catch up with them.

It is to be hoped that this proposal will be eliminated on the Senate floor or in conference.

Another bright idea—to tie the whole National Reserve Plan package to the tail of the Selective Service Act in the Senate and send the combination back to the House for consideration.

It appears to have collapsed when confronted by the practical legislative wisdom of Senator Russell and his associates, who gently pointed out to Secretary Wilson that this procedure might well imperil the renewal of the Selective Service law (without which the country would have no Army worth mentioning). This will by no means solve the problem of how to get sound Reserve legislation on the books this year.

MEANWHILE THE ARMY (which is naturally far more concerned about Reserve legislation than anyone else) has come up with a couple of stop-gap or make-the-best-of-a-bad-bargain ideas. One of these is the Emergency Reinforcement Plan, which applies to men who have completed their two-year draft service and are waiting out their six-year Reserve obligation.

These men are to be given "mobilization assignments" to Active Army, Reserve and National Guard units stationed in the vicinity of their homes: which means that while they will not be organic members of these units, they will be available to fill up the ranks of mobilization.

This is all right as far as it goes, and a considerable improvement on previous methods.

Experience in New Jersey and other States, where the mobilization assignment plan was tried out experimentally last year, does not however back up the officially expressed optimism that the plan will encourage voluntary enlistments in the Guard and Reserve. The experimental results in this respect were virtually nil.

The second Army stop-gap measure is perhaps more hopeful, if small. Army funds will be made available to give 8 weeks basic training to 12,000 National Guard recruits during the coming fiscal year.

This is a sound idea, already applied in some units of the Air National Guard with great success and—despite calamity howlers—no deterrent effect on recruiting. If expanded to ten times the number it would be a notable value.

BUT THE MAIN problem of getting something done about building up a dependable Reserve force for the nation's security remains unsolved, its future doubtful. Perhaps it would be better—as previously suggested in this space—to concentrate on essentials, and prepare a simple bill which would meet the two main points raised by the President.

First, a combat-ready National Guard could be assured by a law which would permit established quotas for the Guard to be filled by the Selective Service process. Second, local security would be much improved by permitting the States to organize State Guards for home service on a skeleton basis—this requires only permissive legislation.

As to the segregation hurdle, surely a law confined to the National Guard would run less risk of being amended on this basis, in view of the long-established constitutional participation of the 48 States in the organization of the militia.

FORT HOOD, Tex.—Seventeen major commands of the 1st Armd. Div. went through the month of May without any motor vehicle accidents, the Provost Marshal's office has announced. Apparently the units adhered to the month's safety slogan "Slow Down and Live," said Capt. R. R. Baughman, division safety officer.

Many Posts Lack Housing, Congress Considers Help

WASHINGTON.—While Congress continues its study of an Army proposal to spend $204-million on new family housing this year, many soldiers are having a hard time finding a place to live at new duty stations.

The semi-annual Army Times housing survey shows that many posts describe their own housing conditions as "critical," and most of them advise newcomers to leave families behind, at least until definite housing is found.

The House Armed Services committee last week approved the $204-million construction bill. A similar bill is being considered by the Senate Armed Services committee.

The following information about housing at Stateside posts came from PIOs, adjutants and billeting officers. Readers should remember that conditions may change rapidly at some bases, such as when big troop units move in and out, colleges end their terms, or the vacation season starts.

Longhorn Ordnance Works, Tex.

ONLY two officers are assigned to this base, and both of these are assigned quarters. No guest houses are available.

The facility is at Marshall, Tex.

Camp Lucas, Mich.

THERE are no government quarters at this installation, which is located at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. The post S-4 advises writing to the post chaplain to find out about housing.

Housing in nearby communities can be found in about a month, with one bedroom apartment prices starting at $50 and two bedroom units starting at $70 (unfurnished) and $80 a month (furnished). Three bedroom units are scarce, and cost from $85 to $125 a month.

Fort MacArthur, Calif.

THE outlook for on-post housing at MacArthur is considered good. The reason: A large percentage of the occupants of family type quarters are expected to leave within the next six months. The post has family quarters for 29 officers and 39 enlisted men.

There is plenty of housing available in such nearby communities as San Pedro, Wilmington and Long Beach, Calif. Rental units are available immediately and the cost is moderate. Rents are estimated to be:

One bedroom — furnished, $40 to $90 a month; unfurnished, $35 to $75.

Two bedroom — furnished, $75 to $110; unfurnished, $55 to $100.

Three bedroom—furnished, $90 to $150; unfurnished, $55 to $110.

Around mid-May, an estimated dozen trailer vacancies existed in the area, but there were no trailer spaces available on the post.

Letterkenny Ordnance Depot, Pa.

THE adjutant can give advice on housing to newcomers to this depot, which is located at Chambersburg, Pa. The depot itself has only 12 quarters for permanently-assigned officers, none for enlisted men.

The outlook for housing in this area is described as "favorable." In the vicinity, unfurnished apartments can be found immediately, but furnished quarters are scarcer (it might take as long as six months before a suitable furnished apartment becomes available).

Rents are fairly reasonable in the Chambersburg area. One bedroom apartments start at $40 a month, two bedroom units begin at $60 a month. Three bedroom apartments begin at $70 a month, but they're mighty hard to find.

There is one guest house available, with a three bedroom apartment and four single rooms. Rental information can be obtained from the depot adjutant.

Lexington Signal Depot, Ky.

APARTMENTS and houses are readily available in the Lexington area, where one bedroom apartments start at $50 monthly, two bedroom apartments begin at $75 and three bedroom apartments and houses go from $120 up.

The depot has only four sets of quarters—all assigned to officers.

Lima Ordnance Depot, O.

THE total strength of this depot is 15 officers and one EM. When the depot reported to the Times, 12 officers and the one enlisted man occupied all of the 13 government quarters. It was anticipated that two new officer replacements, who were to replace the officers living off the post, would make the on-post housing situation tighter.

However, there are ample openings in nearby civilian communities, where rents are a bit more expensive than in most areas of the U.S.

For advance information, write to the Adjutant, Lima Ord. Depot, Lima, O.

Fort Knox, Ky.

"THE housing situation at Fort Knox is critical and will worsen within the next few months," warns the assistant AG at that post. Describing the general housing outlook at Knox for the next six months, he says:

"Within the next six months, the influx of Gyroscoping plus other incoming personnel will further create a demand for on-post quarters, thus adding to the present critical shortage of on-post housing. (This) will cause waiting periods to lengthen."

As it stands now, the waiting period for on-post housing is at least six months, despite the large number of family quarters on post. There are 555 sets of government quarters for officers, 981 for enlisted men and their families in addition, there are 900 Wherry quarters occupied by officers and 800 occupied by enlisted men.

THE AG at Knox says housing within a radius of 15 miles is "scarce." Within 25 to 50 miles from the post, however, rental housing usually is available immediately. The cost of this private housing is:

One bedroom: unfurnished, $35 to $90 a month; furnished, $40 to $100.

Two bedroom: unfurnished, $40 to $125; furnished, $60 to $200.

Three bedroom: unfurnished, $80 to $125; furnished, $80 to $225.

There are an estimated 100 trailer vacancies in the vicinity of Knox. On the post, there were five trailer vacancies for officers, none for EM, when the housing report was sent to the Times last week.

There are 174 rooms available in two guest houses, but all stays are limited to three days. Confirmation of reservations in advance is a good idea.

Soldiers expecting to come to Knox should write the Post Billeting Office in advance. Off-post housing information is available by mail from the Louisville Real Estate Board, 610 West Jefferson, Louisville, Ky.

Fort McClellan, Ala.

MOST people assigned to McClellan never will get government quarters. There are only 42 government quarters for officers, 22 for enlisted men. In addition, a recently-completed Wherry project added 140 family units to post housing. These Wherry units are available to officers and enlisted men alike.

As a result of the recent addition of the 140 Wherry units, there has been no wait for soldiers authorized to move in to these quarters.

In the vicinity of McClellan, one and two bedroom units are plentiful but three bedroom apartments and homes are scarce. Big families can expect to spend as long as three months looking for suitable quarters.

The cost of one bedroom units begin as low as $20 a month; two bedroom apartments start as low as $45 (unfurnished). Three bedroom dwellings in the area, when available, start at $90 a month and go up to $135 and more.

WHEN THE POST reported to this survey in mid-May, there were two on-post trailer openings for officers, none for EM. Off the post, however, there generally are 25 or more trailer vacancies at commercial lots.

The PX operates the one post guest house, which limits visits to three days. There is no central real estate clearing house which can provide advance information at McClellan, but the post billeting office maintains a limited list of furnished and unfurnished houses and apartments that are available for soldiers upon arrival at McClellan.

Fort McPherson, Ga.

A RENOVATION program now taking place at McPherson means that in the immediate future, very few officer quarters will be available on post. This program also will limit the number of EM quarters available.

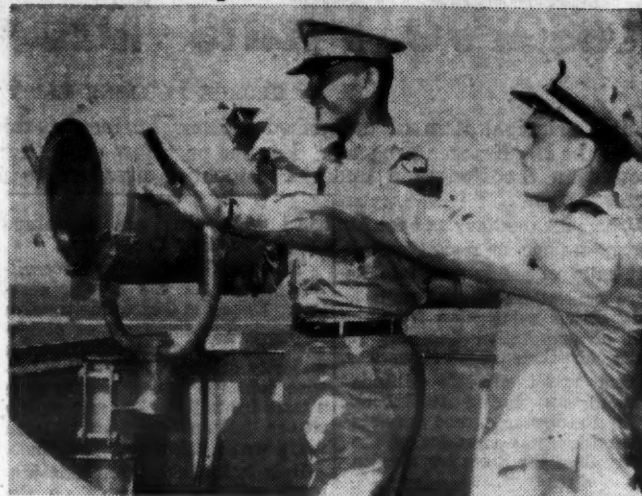

Post quarters (there are 122 for officers, 96 for EM) are assigned as they become available on a rank basis. About 75 percent of the officers cannot expect to get any of these quarters and must live off the post. "The same is true for EM," the billeting office warns.

There are 225 sets of Wherry quarters off the post. No distinction is made between officers and EM in assigning these quarters, but the 68 "more desirable" sets of quarters are assigned on a rank basis.

PRIVATELY-OWNED housing in the area shapes up like this:

Cadets Sample Sea Life

Sudden Thought—

THE SENATE action this week in restoring the 22,000-man cut in the Marine Corps proposed by the President leads us to offer this suggestion to Army planners who will work on next year's budget:

Don't ask for more ground troops. Ask for more paratroops. It's glamor that influences our lawmakers.

Congress Is Loafing

CONGRESS got a fast start this session on military legislation when it whipped through the pay raise, complete with additional features like dislocation pay and per diem raises. The pay package represented a real bite into the full pile of bills Defense has recommended.

Since then there has been a slow-down, so far as completed legislation is concerned. Except for a minor measure or two, like the one okaying armed forces participation in the Olympic Games, no additional military bills have been signed into law.

Important bills are in the legislative mill. Some will pass. But others probably will fall by the wayside in the rush to adjournment next month or early August. We hope that doesn't happen, for many of the pending bills are needed urgently to improve military service. They would supplement the pay bill, which accomplished only part of the job of retaining skilled members and improving service life.

Between now and adjournment time Congress can be expected to okay housing legislation and extend Class Q allotments. Approval of the doctor draft extension is likely; so is the ROPA amendment bill.

The military appropriations and construction bills are, of course, automatic. This year's editions of the two multi-billion-dollar measures will contain much in the way of authority to improve military service.

But another 10 or 12 measures are in doubt. Some at this point are virtually dead. Here are the doubtful bills on the military list Congress should push in the closing weeks of the session:

National Reserve Plan. This bogged-down measure is of such great importance to the nation that it should get first priority in consideration by the whole Congress.

Dependent Medicare. Only slightly more than half of the military dependents now receive care from military hospitals. The others are entitled to equal treatment, and overall service should be improved.

Survivor Benefits. Spadework toward an improved benefits system has been underway—by the administration—for over a year. Now it's up to Congress.

Severance Pay for RIFed Officers. The Pentagon did not help its case for RIF pay by waiting five months (after the Congress convened) to formally ask for this legislation. But it is needed, nevertheless.

Retiring Officers in Highest Grade. Authority to so retire officers expires at the end of 1956. If nothing is done in the interim, they will retire from 1957 on in their permanent Reserve or Regular grade.

Tax Cut for Retired Members. Present law prevents retired military persons under 65 from receiving an annual tax deduction worth up to $240 (which other retired government persons under 65 receive).

Amend the Uniform Code of Military Justice. The services have asked amendments to improve operation of the code.

AFROTC Flying Bill. Under this proposal, future AF officers would get light plane training. Idea is to indoctrinate cadets in the AF's principal job—flying.

Dual Compensation for Retired Officers. The present $3000 limit is entirely unrealistic.

Substandard Quarters. Military families who now pay full quarters allowances for poor quality government quarters would pay rent instead, thus save a few dollars a month.

Relief for Finance Officers. Many finance officers owe Uncle Sam money because of overpayments charged to their accounts. Overpays were made innocently.

The Pentagon, unfortunately, has failed to get its all-service "augmentation bill" to the hill.

Congress can recoup that high batting average—on military lawmaking—it scored early in the session by positive action on the bills now on the doubtful list.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

Pay Statement

ARSENAL, Ark.: Reference, Letters, "Pay Record Needed", June 11 issue, Army Times.

Officers and enlisted members stationed at Pine Bluff Arsenal were given an itemized statement of their normal "over the board" net pay, effective with pay due them Dec. 31, 1954.

With a dual purpose mimeographed form, the service member is advised only when a substantial change (as much as $3) occurs in his "take home" pay. Part one of the form is designed to show new normal net pay if applicable, and part two shows a detailed explanation of circumstances causing the change.

Upon request, we would be happy to furnish sample copies of our "Military Pay Statement" and to answer any inquiries regarding its preparation and distribution.

JAMES P. CLAY
Chief, Mil. Pay Br.

Hoover Criticism

CAMP SCHIMMELPFENNIG, Japan.—We are soldiers with a belief in a military career. Our periods of completed military service range from two to 13 years.

Less than a year ago, a new reenlistment bonus program became law, a program which increased the reenlistment rate in the Army by drawing many men back for further service. Only recently, we were offered the benefits of a pay increase which our government, after long and persistent debate, saw fit to grant.

Both of these measures definitely contributed to the Army's plan for making a military career more attractive to young men. But now someone would, it appears, undermine our financial livelihoods as soldiers by curtailing and/or terminating the beneficial sources we servicemen have for meeting the cost of living.

The Hoover Commission would put a cessation to certain military activities, which currently furnish the servicemen with necessities for everyday living.

True, the PX's and related outlets offer many luxuries to the military, at a price below the prices for the same items outside the military sphere. But is it a fact that this condition is truly stifling free enterprise? Should we soldiers, who always have been and always will be required to meet the needs of the service and serve in the best interests of the same, be required to compete economically with the generally well-paid, carefree public who are outside our realm of life?

The Army's command structure is a well defined, efficiently operating function channelled from the Commander-in-Chief through the chain of command to the lowest ranking private. In the final analysis, we as soldiers are subject not only to military law, but also civil justice.

Many of us are family men desiring to raise a decent family and trying to offer our children the best the Army can afford them in education. We as good soldiers desire and try to foster a sense of discipline and respect in our families so that they will develop characteristics of more patriotic Americans.

But how, we ask, could we give our families in this man's Army what they are entitled to if the present benefits we accrue through PX's and commissaries and the like are vanquished?

Sirs, we fail to see any practical economic advantages resulting from the proposed shut-down of military enterprises. We definitely feel that it would instead result in a pitiful state of economic conditions for the military, by and large.

To take away our needed benefits such as we derive through PX's, commissaries, and related activities will help to drive the Army's best men out in many cases, and not support the reenlistment programs which the Army presently has in effect.

Doubletime Goof

FORT STORY, Va.—The cut of Maj. Gen. C. E. Ryan on page one of your June 11 issue looks as if the negative was reversed, since his ribbons are on the right side of his uniform when they should be on the left.

(Right. The engraver reversed the thing when making the cut and no one noticed it until too late.—Editor.)

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. — Re picture on back of Army Times, June 11: I see Debbie Reynolds is named an honorary "Gimlet" by the 34th Infantry. I was in the 52d FA Bn., supporting the 21st Infantry in Korea, and I always thought the 21st were the "Gimlets" and the 34th the "Dragons."

J. L. S.

(You are really zeroed-in, man. We misread the report as sent in. Of course, the 21st are the "Gimlets." Maybe we should have scrapped that issue of the paper and begun all over.—Editor.)

Meaningless Plea?

KILLEEN, Tex.—Your editorials on the Reserve bill and medicare were surely appreciated and we all like the straight-from-the-shoulder talk you usually put in your editorials. But I wanted to add my bit to the pass-over deal that is being given Reserve officers on active duty, for the writer is in that category.

Especially when you read the last paragraph of the "Dear John" letters that were forwarded the latter part of 1953 (mine was dated 10 Oct. 53) which states, "Please be assured that you have just cause for pride in the service you have rendered your country. The Army is sincerely appreciative of your patriotism and your contribution to the defense of the United States."

TWO YEARS' GRACE

Retirement Rule Eased

tention is the inability of an officer to retire before reaching age 60, Mr. Milton said.

There will be no "compounding of exceptions." Those informed of their impending release last all do not come under the two-time-passover-and-out provisions of the officer vitalization program.

THE NEW POLICY will apply even though the Army is faced with "exceptionally high" officer losses this year.

These losses are occasioned by two things:

1. A Defense Department requirement that the Army take 4000-plus more ROTC graduates in for two-year obligated AD tours than are needed to satisfy troop requirements. These officers must be absorbed within budget limits. No pay will be available for many non-obligated officers.

2. The beginning of the vitalization program. This year, in considering officers for temporary promotion, many senior officers in all grades who were judged "ineffective" by promotion boards, will be released. Losses from the two-time pass-over policy will run "four or five times higher" than can be expected after the program has been in effect for two or three years, Maj. Gen. Donald P. Booth, Army G-1, estimates.

Present plans call for no involuntary release program as such. By this is meant that no boards will be convened to select officers for force-out before end of current categories.

On the other hand, Reserve component officers will find that there will be a smaller percentage of category renewals than normal, as the Army is forced to reduce the AD officer corps. Even here, it will be the least effective officers whose categories are up for renewal who will be released.

This group, combined with those leaving because of being twice passed over, plus normal losses from voluntary non-renewals, retirements, resignations, death and other causes, will be enough, it is now estimated, to forestall a board-out program.

Gen. Booth has ordered a continuing study of all policies affecting the AD officer corps.

Joint-Service Team Formed To Probe MD-Draft Dilemma

keep military physicians and dentists in service longer, are:

1. Improved retirement conditions for military medics.
2. Increased special pay and other benefits.
3. More acceptable in-service career program for the individual medical officer.
4. Higher rank upon entry into military service.

There are about 10,000 military doctors now, a third of whom are Regular officers. But the number of Regulars is dwindling, a committee spokesman said. One big aim is to increase the percentage of Regular officers from one-third to two-thirds of the total doctor strength.

Of the 10,000 military doctors nearly 3000 are Army, a ratio of about three to every 1000 troops.

WHAT HAPPENS to the group's recommendations to the Defense Secretary remains to be seen. Legislative requests — next year — may result. Administrative steps to improve medics' career service may be taken earlier.

Dr. Frank B. Berry, Assistant Defense Secretary for health and medicine, told Congress this month that the problem is largely one of simple economics. Whereas civilian physicians average over $15,000 annually (in 1951), young military physicians get about half that amount.

He was testifying in support of the doctor draft extension (beyond July 1) and continuation of the special $100 a month pay military doctors now receive. Congress is weighing these extensions now. Even with these two programs medical staffing is in serious trouble.

Without the extensions, medicare would be completely inadequate, officials declare.

The joint-service study team will explore new methods, above and beyond the two continuation measures, to attract doctors to the military.

Senate Brushes Off Plan to Boost Funds

Force; and (3) prevent reduction of the Army below its June 30, 1955, strength. After the Senate adopted the Marine Corps proposal, Symington said he would not offer the other two because they would be defeated.

The bill now goes back to the House with almost no changes in the Army portion. Both bills authorize a 1,027,000-man Army at the end of fiscal year 1956 (June 30, 1956). There is no new money for procurement.

Public Health Degrees

WASHINGTON.—Col. Joseph W. Manges and Lt. Col. W. H. Dietrich, both of the Veterinary Corps, have received degrees of Master of Public Health from Johns Hopkins University and the University of Michigan respectively.

Chaplain Cited

FORT BENNING, Ga.—Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Charles W. Lovin, assistant Infantry Center chaplain at Benning, has been cited by Wofford College at Spartanburg, S. C., for outstanding alumni service.

Patch Requests

The following collectors of service insignia and patches ask Army Times readers to send them such material for which they have no further need:

Harold Hurwitz, 2204 Desplains Ave., Des Plaines, Ill.
Clyde "Jimmie" Oertli, Bahor Children's Home, Goshen, Ind.

Career Bills Stalled on Hill

is again being bypassed. For the last two years, delays by the Army, Defense and the Bureau of the Budget have been responsible.

Defense again seems to be holding up any chance of action this year.

In the Senate, there is strong interest and some confusion over the ratio of Reserve component to Regular officers on active duty in the various services. The Senate would like to know why this ratio varies with each service.

The Navy ratio is approximately one-to-one. In the Air Force, the ratio is four Reserves to each Regular. In the Army, the ratio is about three-to-one.

Defense is studying these ratios, apparently with an idea of bringing them into line for all services. To do this, increases in the authorized Regular officer strength of the Army and Air Force will be needed. And integration—or augmentation—authority will be necessary. The Army and Navy want such authority to be permanent.

In any event, the problem appears to be so complex that no legislative proposal for all services will be submitted until next year.

THE "INADEQUATE QUARTERS" bill may also be in for some rough handling. The service position is that it is unfair to ask people living in substandard quarters to give up a full quarters allowance. This should be required only when men are quartered in permanent-type government-owned quarters, it is felt.

Therefore, when a man is assigned to inadequate quarters, the services would charge rent less than the man's quarters' allowance.

Reaction on the Hill is that on the surface, this is a fair proposition. But beneath the surface, this question lurks: If the inadequate quarters bill is passed, will men, and the services, want inadequate quarters so that they can, in effect, increase their pay by the difference between the rent they pay and their quarters allowance? Might not such a bill, Congress asks, encourage the services to delay replacing inadequate quarters with permanent ones?

In place of the proposal, there is some sentiment for providing authority and funds for rapid replacement of inadequate quarters with permanent. By refusing to pass the bill, some Congressmen feel, they would be speeding such replacement construction.

ON THE SCHEDULE of the House committee are both the "readjustment pay" bill and the "choice of home" bill. The latter is uncomplicated and fair, Congressional sources say, and should pass at this session.

It proposes that all service personnel on retiring should get travel allowances and dependent and household goods allowances to a "home of choice." The bill would extend this right, now available only to Regulars who retire, to retiring Reserve component officers, and to those who receive severance pay, either for physical disability separation or under involuntary release. Undetermined is whether "readjustment pay" for involuntarily released reservists would qualify as "severance pay."

The readjustment pay bill has received strong Congressional backing in some quarters. It is on the House committee schedule. If the House passes it soon, the Senate committee will probably schedule it. This could mean passage this year.

The provisions of the bill are that Reserve component officers boarded out for inefficiency, for being twice passed over for temporary promotion, or released under a budgetary reduction-in-force would draw "readjustment pay," if they had at least five years' active duty.

Those with at least five and no more than 10 years' duty would receive one-half of one month's pay for each year of service. Those with more than 10 years' service would receive a month's pay for each year more than 10 and one-half a month's pay for each of the first 10 years' service, up to 20 years.

Those with 20 years' service would be retired. Those with more than 18 years' service would be retained until they qualified for retirement.

Other military measures, of interest to the Army, moving through Congress:

Increase Academy Appointments. The House Armed Services committee approved this measure. It increases the Presidential appointments, to West Point and the Air Force Academy, to 300 to each school. This would be the total number of Presidential appointees in each school at one time. Now, the President is allowed only 80 appointees to each.

Presidential appointments customarily go to sons of career service people. The bill would increase the total authorized cadet strength at both schools from 2496 to 2707.

Extend Missing Persons Act. The Senate passed and the House Armed Services Committee approved bills to extend this act one year, to July 1, 1956. It is the only authority the government has to continue paying dependents of missing servicemen.

Twice-a-month Pay. The Senate passed and the House Armed Services committee approved bills to give twice-a-month pay solid legal status. The Air Force already has such a program in operation.

Authorize Enlistment Extensions of less than one year. The Senate passed and the House Armed Services committee approved this measure. The authority would be used only where extensions are in the best interest of the government. There are times, the services have said, when short enlistments of a few months are needed to take care of servicemen on special assignments.

Settlement of Accounts of Deceased Servicemen. This bill which passed the Senate earlier, was okayed by the House Armed Services committee last week. Under existing law, a serviceman can name the beneficiary for his six-months' death gratuity and GI insurance. The bill permits him to name one to receive all his final pays.

Advance Payments for Certain Pay and Allowances. This has been okayed by the full Senate and the House Armed Services committee. Men now leaving service are entitled to pay and allowances for the days they travel from last post to home. But there is no authority to pay this money in advance—the services must issue a separate check after the person arrives home. The services want legal authority to make this payment before the person physically leaves, and will get it in this measure.

Relief for AF and Army Regular Officers. Some 5200 officers who received their Regular commissions before 1953 remained at home for several weeks awaiting active duty calls. They received pay and allowances while at home. Later, the Comptroller General ruled that such pay was invalid. This bill, which the House passed and sent to the Senate this week, relieves such persons of repayment. Also, any officer who has paid back such pays would receive them again.

Reserve Benefits. This provides permanent authority for reservists drawing disability benefits to waive the benefits in order to receive training or active duty pay. The measure, approved in separate bills by the House and Senate Armed Services committees, also gives authority for recall of such persons to AD in war or emergency.

Letters to the Editor

States. It is hoped that upon return to civil life you will continue to render such service by maintaining an active interest in Reserve component affairs." (Underline added by writer.)

Every effort was made by the writer as well as others to find some way of maintaining an "active interest" in Reserve affairs, but both through our present organization and the military district, the same reply came back, in effect, "no soap" except for correspondence courses, which the writer has had a plenty and is a college graduate.

The progress of the elimination pay for Reserve officers seems OK, but the keeping up of Reserve commissions for those who soldier every day seems a must when you look around and still find "automatic promotions" for those in civil life having their name on the strength report.

"PASSED-OVER"

Wear of the Uniform

FRANKFURT, Germany.—When I was taking basic training, over 10 years ago, we were issued work shoes and tight, ill-fitting OD blouses as part of our class "A" uniform, which, to say the least, were out of date. New soldiers looked forward to completion of 17 weeks of basic training and shipment overseas so they could wear "combat" boots and "Ike" jackets. The basic soldier, then, regarded the uniform as incomplete without these two items. He thought of the present-day OD dress uniform as a mark of distinction and reward for completion of basic training and assignment to overseas service.

This uniform lost its proud distinction after World War II. Hitchhikers, garbage collectors, street bums, and many others wear them dirty, torn, and mixed with civilian clothing—making the uniform a disgrace.

The Army now plans to issue the new "green" uniform this fall. Here, then, is a chance to regain pride in the uniform; to improve morale, appearance and esprit de corps of the individual soldier by regulating the issue and wearing of the uniform.

After indoctrination in the wearing of the uniform, its tradition and distinction, and only upon completion of basic training, issue the new uniform as a badge of honor to be worn with pride.

Issue it as organizational equipment tailored to fit and to remain with the individual until his release from active duty or discharge. Only allow those men who retire after 20 or more years' service to retain it after release.

This will help prevent wearing the uniform or parts of it with civilian clothing so as to destroy its rightful place in the service of our country.

THE 75TH DIV. VETERANS ASSOCIATION is staging its ninth annual reunion at the Waldorf

WASHINGTON. — A versatile aerial tramway for landing military supplies ship-to-shore across open beaches and precarious waters, without using piers or other customary harbor facilities, has been developed by Army research and development engineers.

Constructed by the Transportation Corps at Fort Eustis, Va., the tramway system solves one of the most difficult logistics problems encountered in military landings.

The tramway consists of a series of 100-foot-high steel towers extending half a mile into the James River and ending at a specially-constructed sea terminal.

The tramway system is expected to facilitate important new developments in the maintenance of supply lines by permitting greater selection of sites for the discharge of cargo.

No longer will insurmountable supply obstacles be presented by ports which are wrecked or heavily damaged by an enemy; rocky, wavelashed coasts; or shores which are heavily mined or otherwise obstructed.

AT EUSTIS, parallel steel cables supported by the steel towers provide tracks for self-propelled "sky-cars," powered by 135-hp gasoline engines, which can shuttle ashore 12 to 20 tons of cargo at a time at speeds up to 30-mph.

Cargo is taken from ships and speeded ashore via the stationary traction cables to the inland tramway terminal. Tramway transfer capacity is approximately 120 tons per hour from shipside to shore.

The experimental tramway has transferred 540,000 tons of cargo during a successful 2000-hour trial

Astoria Hotel, New York, N. Y., from Aug. 4-7. For further information contact Carl S. Friedes, 914 50th St., Brooklyn 19, N. Y.

FOURTH OF A SERIES

Many Posts Lack Housing, Congress Considers Help

One bedroom: Available immediately, ranging from $45 to $75 a month (there is some question about the acceptability of furnished units in this range).

Two bedroom: Available in one or two weeks, at a cost of from $65 to about $100 a month.

Three bedroom: There is a definite scarcity here, and it is recommended that newcomers allow about a month for finding a suitable apartment or home. The cost starts at about $85 for an unfurnished unit, and ranges upward to about $135.

Trailers generally aren't used in the McPherson area.

For temporary visits, the post operates the Lodge and the Chateau for officers, and a guest house for EM and their families. There is no central real estate agency that can provide advance information on housing, but the post operates a billeting office which can furnish data. The post advises leaving families behind until housing is definitely rented.

Fort Meade, Md.

THE post billeting officer reports:

"The general outlook for on-post and Wherry housing during the next six months remains difficult. Fort Meade will participate in Operation Gyroscope and certain housing will be assigned to personnel of the incoming unit on a priority basis. This will affect non-Gyroscope personnel by increasing the waiting period by six to eight weeks.

"Newcomers are advised to precede their dependents and household goods if possible. Government storage for household goods is very limited and inability to locate suitable off-post housing may result in commercial storage at the soldier's expense. Storage of household goods should be arranged with local transportation officer until quarters at Fort Meade are secured."

Two bedroom Wherry units on the post were available immediately to officers when the Meade housing report was sent to Army Times near the end of last month. The waiting period for one bedroom apartments was from one to two months. Three bedroom apartments are extremely scarce — the waiting period ranges between three and six months. EM could get unfurnished Wherry quarters within eight weeks, furnished government quarters in approximately three months.

There are 588 Wherry units for officers, 198 for EM. The post has 511 non-Wherry family quarters for enlisted men, 109 for officers.

THE POST billeting officer maintains a list of off-post housing which is available to newcomers. The available off-post housing within 15 miles of the post is limited and expensive. Apartments and houses are available in the vicinity of Hyattsville, Md., which is within 25 minutes of the post on the Baltimore-Washington Parkway. One bedroom apartments in this area begin at $50 a month, two bedroom units start at $70 and three bedroom dwellings cost at least $90 a month (probably a lot more).

The post has no trailer facilities. Trailer rates in the area average around $25 to $35 a month.

There is a three day limit on visits in the two guest houses, which have a total of 41 rooms. Reservations should be made in advance by writing to the Assistant Post Exchange Officer, Fort George G. Meade, Md.

Fort Miles, Del.

RENTS go up in the summer, down in the winter around this post, which is in a seaside resort area. As a general rule, except at the height of the summer season apartments should be relatively easy to find and reasonable in price.

The post has its own family quarters for 15 officers and 13 enlisted men. Three trailer sites (available to all grades) were vacant as of a month ago.

The post adjutant, who handles housing, says the general outlook for on-post housing is "fair" for eligible enlisted men, "excellent" for officers.

Presidio of Monterey, Calif.

THE Army Language School at the Presidio of Monterey uses the 1000-unit Wherry project at nearby Fort Ord, since it has no Wherry units of its own. The post has only 39 family quarters for officers, 21 for EM. Soldiers assigned to the language school can expect to get quarters at the Ord Wherry project within seven to 10 days.

Civilian-owned housing in nearby communities is available immediately. Prices begin at $40 a month for one-bedroom units, $55 a month to about $115 for two-bedroom apartments. Three bedroom dwellings range between $65 and $175 a month.

There are no trailer spaces available on the post, but a recent check turned up 31 empty spaces in the vicinity.

A file of civilian rentals is available for incoming students. Advance information can be obtained from "Commandant, Army Language School, Presidio of Monterey, Calif., Attn. Billeting Officer."

Fort Monmouth, N. J.

THE recent opening of a 600-unit Wherry project (divided equally between officers and EM) has helped to ease the housing strain here. The PIO estimates that eligible newcomers can expect to get into one of these Wherry units or one of the 286 government quarters within two months.

One big splotch on the current housing picture is the renovation of post quarters now under way. Until renovation is completed, "housing on post will be practically nil."

In his report to Army Times (dated May 20), the PIO wrote: "We do have a guest house on the post. The USO in Long Branch acts as a central organization in assisting soldiers with housing in nearby communities. As to advice to newcomers, the commanding general, once a month, orients all incoming officers; the company commanders orient the enlisted men, upon arrival, with the help of the Enlisted Personnel Br.

"In addition, our Adjutant General's office has a housing section whereby real estate firms and property owners list their apartments and houses with this section. Also, there is a United Shore Servicemen's Organization in Asbury Park, 10 miles from the post, which assists in locating suitable quarters for military men.

"Another source of assistance is our post newspaper, the Monmouth Message, whereby the publisher permits property owners to submit their advertisements, regarding housing, at no cost."

One and two bedroom apartments are fairly easy to find, but there is a shortage of three-bedroom dwellings (allow two or three weeks for the larger units).

The 18 trailer spaces on post are fully occupied by enlisted men's families.

Murphy Army Hospital, Mass.

THE hospital has no on-post family quarters. The adjutant reported:

"A check with the local rent control office in Waltham, Mass., indicated that the available housing off-post was limited, and the waiting period was in the vicinity of two weeks to two months; that furnished dwelling units were almost non-existent in the area around the hospital."

Fort Ord, Calif.

NEWCOMERS to Fort Ord can get advance housing information by writing to the billeting office, attaching a copy of their orders.

The housing situation in the Ord area appears to be pretty good. Off-post dwellings can be found immediately, and there were 1430 families living off the post when the Ord report was sent to the Times in mid-May.

Newcomers generally can expect to get into one of the 1000 Wherry units within a week to 10 days. These units are for both officers and EM. The post also has government quarters for 52 officers and 718 enlisted men.

One bedroom apartments (privately-owned) can be had for between $45 and $85 a month. Two bedroom apartments start at $55 monthly, three bedroom units begin at about $85 and go up to as much as $175 monthly (furnished).

Seven guest houses maintain 186 rooms for short visits to the

Gyroscope Reaches Bragg

THE FIRST FAMILY to return to Fort Bragg, N. C., area under Operation Gyroscope is welcomed to the ZI by Maj. Gen. Joseph P. Cleland, Bragg and XVIII Abn. Corps commander. Glad to come home are SFC Lorin E. Voyles and his wife, Helen, and Lorin Jr., John W., Shirley Anne and Mary L. The Voyles family was part of the 187th Abn. RCT advance party. The rest of the 187th is coming home from Japan next month, by air.

post. The Monterey Chamber of Commerce may provide some advance help in finding off-post housing.

Picatinny Arsenal, N. J.

THE Arsenal is located at Dover, N. J., in the middle of a summer resort area. Consequently, housing is considered "critical" until September, pretty good in the fall and winter.

The arsenal maintains 34 on-post family quarters for officers, three for enlisted men. Normally, there is no waiting period for eligible officers and men to move into these partially-furnished quarters.

The post adjutant can provide advance housing information.

75th RCT Troop Gifts Help Support Lonely Okinawa Leper Colony

FORT BUCKNER, Okinawa. — Off the west coast of northern Okinawa on the remote Motobu Peninsula lies a small island which is the home of almost 1000 lepers.

The village of Airaku-en (Garden of Love and Comfort) was founded on this island by a Japanese lay reader of the Anglican Church in 1938.

Prior to the outbreak of War II, the Japanese government had taken over the village and expanded its facilities. It deteriorated badly during the war and was severely damaged in the battle of Okinawa.

Following the war, the U. S. Civil Administration of the Ryukyus and the government of the Ryukyus took the community as their ward and laid the foundation for a modern leper colony.

Late in 1952, the 29th Inf. Regt. stationed on Okinawa adopted the Airaku-en leper colony as a permanent welfare project.

The first work undertaken was to secure equipment and other badly needed supplies for the community hospital. An elaborate assortment of medical provisions were sent to the colony early in 1953.

The idea of having members of families and friends requesting clothing, miscellaneous household appliances, canned foods and other useful items for the inmates of the colony, was regarded as an excellent suggestion and immediately was presented to the enlisted personnel of the regiment for approval. The opportunity to extend their good will was accepted wholeheartedly and as a result, the regimental chaplain's office was soon overflowing with packages sent from the 21 for distribution among the lepers.

DURING THE SPRING of 1953 the dilapidated power generators at Airaku-en were put into good working order.

In July of the same year, the building of a community chapel to be known as the "House of Prayer" was begun. The generosity of the infantrymen aided immensely in easing the cost of construction. On Nov. 1, 1953, the chapel was completed and officially dedicated.

At a meeting of the 29th's welfare council in late October 1953, an emergency fund of $300, to be maintained at all times, was approved. It was also decided that a request be submitted to the men of the 29th for support of a Christmas party to be held at the colony. Donations poured in and by December over $500 had been accumulated. On Dec. 23, toys, books, games, clothing, athletic equipment and food were taken to the colony. The party was a tremendous success.

THE WELFARE WORK of the 29th Inf. Regt. received a helping hand on March 15, 1954, with the assignment of the 612th FAB to the 29th making it a regimental combat team.

The first major project through the new RCT was construction of a recreation hall at the colony, $4200 in donations. By April the work was underway. Today an inscribed

Walter Reed Deputy

WASHINGTON. — The appointment of Col. Francis W. Pruitt, MC, as Deputy Commander of Walter Reed Army Hospital, has been announced here by Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, commanding general of Walter Reed Army Medical Center. Col. Pruitt will continue to serve also as chief of the hospital's Medical Department which he has headed for the past two years.

plaque is imbedded in the cornerstone of the hall as a token of the appreciation of the lepers.

A survey held throughout April, May and June of 1954 revealed that approximately 60 inmates of the colony were squeezed into a hospital designed for about 30. The government of the Ryukyus Islands immediately expanded the hospital with a 50-bed wing.

The 29th took over from there with a new project—to furnish this wing with all necessary equipment. A drive was conducted within the RCT and on Sept. 2 $3000 was presented to the USCAR Welfare Director for the purchase of beds, mattresses, sheets, pillow cases and blankets.

SINCE ENTIRE families live within the colony, children are

Fort Story Logistic Support Exercise Slated

FORT STORY, Va.—Troops and amphibious vehicles from Fort Story will take part in the big Combat Support Problem No. 19 to be staged by the Transportation School at Fort Eustis June 20-30. The exercise, which will have an audience of hundreds of senior military observers, West Point cadets and student officers, will employ three of Story's huge BARCs as well as DUKWs and other equipment. Two units of the 54th Trans. Bn., the 612th DUKW Co. and the 554th Heavy Boat Co. will represent Story in the logistical support exercise.

BEST MESS AWARD of the month again goes to Hq. Co., 5th Trans. Term. Command B, which makes it an 11-time win for the company's mess steward, SFC Herbert L. Ripley, whose mess hall leads all others at Story. Presentation of the trophy to Ripley and the company commander, Capt. Gordon E. Cawthorne, was made by Story's new deputy post commander, Lt. Col. John W. Daly.

THE SOLDIER of the Week distinction seems to be permanently conferred on a member of Hq. Co., 5th Trans. Term. Command B, training NCO, SFC Robert R. Collins. Collins got the title this week for the third time.

STORY'S BIVOUAC area is accommodating about 1400 troops taking part in the exercise LOTS 572 West. They are members of the 339th Eng. Const. Bn., originally from Fort Knox, Ky., now assigned to Fort Eustis for operational purposes. Commanding officer of the 339th, who also is Far Shore Commander for LOTS 572 West, is Maj. Paul G. Kalchek.

CHANGES IN STORY'S S3 Section include assignment of Capt. Upshur B. Quinby III, as Plans and Training Officer. He comes here from service in Germany where he was assigned to the 125th Trans. Bn. He will replace Maj. Truman P. Lambert, who has been assigned to the Far East Command.

THE 48TH CLASS in operation and maintenance of the DUKW was graduated this week by the 461st Trans. Co. which conducts the eight-week course. The honor student of the 36-man class is Sgt. Francis W. Hines.

LATEST contribution of the 75th RCT troops is 50 hospital beds, for the TB section of the leper colony's infirmary. Troops above are helping unload the beds at the colony, which is visited regularly by the men bringing gifts.

often born to leprosy parents. Those who show no signs of the disease are taken away immediately after birth and placed in a nearby orphanage. The 29th RCT NCO Wives Club has done much to improve the living conditions of these children.

The RCT was redesignated as the 75th last November and continued to sponsor the colony. Another Christmas party was held last year and the NCO Wives' Club spent $250 for Christmas gifts and a party for the children.

Through the years that this work has been carried on, the inmates of the colony have sent many letters of appreciation to their military benefactors. Last month 50 complete hospital beds were received and presented to the hospital. Also $500 was donated by the RCT to improve electrical facilities. An additional $1400 has been donated for the colony but no decision has been made to date as to how the money will be used.

Stateside

PFC June E. Persing, of the WAC Detachment at the Brooklyn Army Base, Brooklyn, N. Y., was recently chosen "Wac of the Month." Her reward? A three-day all-expense-paid trip to New York, just across the East River from Brooklyn.

In Washington, Fort Belvoir Pvt. Howard B. Meyers tried to break up a fight between two girls and was jumped by a 16-year-old boy. Meyers was taken to Walter Reed Hospital for treatment and Juvenile Squad detectives charged his assailant with assault with a dangerous weapon—his shod foot.

And at Fort Leonard Wood, Co. A, 253d Armd. FA Bn., has a city boy from Hannibal, Mo., named Pvt. Davy Crockett.

Fort Sill, Okla., rolled out the red carpet for 485 West Point cadets on summer training at the Artillery Guided Missile Center there. A special treat for the future generals was a buffalo barbecue, sponsored by the Lawton, Okla., Chamber of Commerce.

At Fort Lewis, Wash., a pigeon walked wearily into a TI office at the Personnel Center, accepted a drink of water, walked out again and took off. But not before GIs noted the bird's ID band, which identified it as "751-X." Tacoma pigeon experts figured the bird was in a long-distance race, but admitted it must have flown out of the money. The ID band also said "2318 Aug. '54, Ore."

RESERVE AFFAIRS

ROA Delegates Chide Army For Ignoring ROPA Terms

By STEVE TILLMAN

BOSTON.—Eyes of the military world this week are focused on this city, meeting place of the 29th annual convention of the Reserve Officers Association.

As the convention opened all signs pointed to affairs of the active duty Army Reserve officers and the non-active duty Reserve program as the major controversies of the conclave.

The big question here as officers arrived from all over the world to discuss their problems, was whether the Army is above the mandate of Congress.

Active duty officers were under the belief that when Congress passed the Reserve Officers Personnel Act, which becomes the law of the land on July 1, the Army would obey the law with respect to officers having 18 years' active duty service.

This provision of the new law says that such officers who are overage or who are passed over twice for promotion may be retained on active duty until they can complete 20 years' service for immediate retirement.

It appears that the "powers that be" in the Pentagon forgot to read this paragraph in the Reserve Officers Personnel Act, since they came up with the requirement that the 18 years' active duty must all be served as a commissioned officer.

In the case of the overage officers, the law says that if they have 18 years' active duty as of July 1—but the policy of Army says that it must have been completed as of Sept. 30, 1954.

Hot Potato

ANOTHER "hot potato" is expected to be ROA's consideration of the Sparkman-Huddleston measure to equalize retirement benefits for Reserve officers.

Although endorsed by the 1954 convention, controversy has developed in the organization over certain provisions of the proposal.

The 1955 meeting of the National Guard Association and the Adjutants General Association did endorse the measure in toto.

Bombshell

THE STORY in Army Times June 11 "Army, ROA Clash on Ruling" hit like a bombshell. Few Reserve officers on active duty have as much as 18 years' active duty as officers. Many do have the 18 years' total active duty—but not all as an officer.

In answer to the many queries received relative to "two-time pass-overs" being discharged from their Reserve status and losing Retirement equity, the answer is that most will.

This can be preserved for future retirement under either Title II or Title III of PL-810 by transfer

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

GROUND SCHOOL INSTRUCTORS in weather and aircraft engineering needed by Air Force Contract School. Must be college graduate with some Air Force experience. Starting salary $375.00 per month. Liberal benefits. Write or call Director of Personnel, Hawthorne School of Aeronautics, Moultrie, Georgia.

to the Retired Reserve (Old Honorary Reserve).

There are several requirements for this, but the basic one is that the individual be 37 years of age and have at least eight years' satisfactory Reserve service.

Readjustment Bill

IT'S NOW official. The Reserve readjustment measure has been introduced in the House by Rep. Carl Vinson (D., Ga.), chairman of the House Armed Services committee, as HR-6725.

Details of the proposal appeared in Army Times for June 11. Until hearings are under way the proposed effective date can not be determined.

Reserve leaders will ask for a retroactive date so as to include Reserve officers already relieved. Since this may not happen, an effort may be initiated to permit Reserve officers involuntarily separated from the Reserve, and who are 55 years of age and have a minimum of 20 years' creditable service, to retire.

In the case of retirement under Title III of PL-810, such an action would mean cutting the age by five years. This move was discussed in this column of April 23.

Social Security Bill

SEN. BOURKE Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) has introduced S. 2184, which proposes reduction of the Social Security benefit age from 65 to 60 for men and from 65 to 55 for women.

Enactment would prove of material benefit to retired Regulars and Reserve personnel of the armed services, as well as survivors.

This Congress may extend until Dec. 31, 1955 present free coverage under Social Security for active duty personnel.

600 New WOs

BEGINNING July 1, the Army will commission more than 600 Army Reserve and National Guard warrant officers for certain MOSS, or specialties.

Qualified members of the Reserve components, in submitting application for such appointment, may at the same time request active duty after appointment.

Interestingly enough, commissioned Reserve officers may apply for the AUS warrant appointment (temporary), and if appointed will not lose their Reserve commissioned status.

No Army Insignia

ROTC students attending summer training camps will not wear the "U. S. Army" insignia on field clothing. This prohibition is contained in Circular 145-7 (c.s.).

Reaction: Distrust

FIRST REACTION of active duty Reserve officers to the new plan of the Army to eliminate term categories was one of distrust.

A category for a definite number of years to some extent assured them of retention on active duty.

The new policy, which will be contained in Army Regulations 135-215 and Army Circular 135-6, puts Reserve active duty officers on a career basis. Latest information coming to me is that the officers are better satisfied after taking a second look at the proposal.

When the policy is better understood morale of the Reservists is expected to improve considerably.

Mudgett on Target

MAJ. GEN. Gilman Mudgett, Army Chief of Information, was right on target when he said that, "for reasons it is difficult to put your finger on, the average Army officer has a definite fear of a reporter. As a result, we are not fully using these individuals who have the means of really telling the Army's story to the public."

The general also said that "we depend too much on stereotype releases which are impersonal and generate little interest for that reason." How true.

Mudgett could have added that too many speakers make an appearance before groups without bringing copies of their talks for

Welcome Back

GREETINGS from the 11th Abn. Div. CG, Maj. Gen. Derrill M. Daniel, go to SFC Francis C. Dreas, first volunteer to arrive from the 82d Abn. Div., Fort Bragg, N.C., for the 11th's Gyro-scope move. It was something of a homecoming for Dreas, who took basic at Fort Campbell and later served in Korea and Japan with the 187th Abn. RCT and 3d Inf. Div. He's now assigned to Tank Co., 188th Abn. Inf. Regt.

the press. This is a very common failure on the part of high level Defense officials who address conventions of the Reserve Officers Association, the National Guard Association and the Adjutants General Association.

Quarters Pay

UNDER existing law, when government quarters are occupied the entire quarters allowance must be forfeited, regardless of the adequacy of the quarters.

Congress has been asked to authorize use of sub-standard government quarters on a rental basis, especially with respect to BOQ quarters for unattached officers.

It has had a bad morale reaction on ROTC graduates who might have been interested in making the Army a career. In the old days the officer without dependents had two rooms, a living room and sleeping quarters, assigned him. The Army desperately needs to return to this consideration of the younger officer.

NCO Separation

COME JULY 1, AR 615-15 will set the noncommissioned officer up to his old place in the Army's sun. The noncommissioned officers and specialists will form two separate categories.

The regulations will apply equally to the National Guard and Reserve. The noncommissioned officer will outrank the specialist.

Thus, a corporal will outrank a master specialist (E-7). Noncoms will be used only in supervisory roles on fatigue duty, and only as noncommissioned officer of the guard when on guard duty.

At the same time, specialists in E-6 and E-7 grades will be exempt from guard and fatigue duty.

Most important of all the new regulations provides that once the pay grade is attained, it will not be lost to the individual when he transfers from one unit to another.

Uniform Delay

ARMY RESERVE and National Guard officers will not be able to purchase the new Army green uniform from the Quartermaster and commercial outlets until Sept. 1, 1956.

Just when the new uniform will be an item of issue to troops of the Army Reserve and National Guard is not known. Guess is that all serviceable ODs in stock will be used up first.

NO FHA IN JAPAN

Q. I am an Army officer stationed in Japan and am particularly interested in finding out if it is possible to get an FHA in-service loan to construct a home on a post while stationed here. A number of other officers are presently considering building a portable-type house, the cost of which is approximately $3000. We would prefer a loan through FHA rather than a local bank. G. N. D.

A. Sorry, it can't be done. The house purchased with the in-service FHA mortgage insurance must be located in the United States, Alaska, Guam, Hawaii, Puerto Rico or the Virgin Islands.

UN RIBBON

Q. What is the order of wearing the United Nations ribbon among one's other ribbons?

A. Following all United States decorations and service ribbons come ribbons of foreign decorations, then the United Nations Service ribbon, and finally any other foreign service ribbons. It takes precedence over all other foreign service ribbons.

LOST TIME

Q. If a soldier has been AWOL and is put in the stockade, is the stockade time added to his absence without leave — to be made up before he may obtain a discharge?

A. Stockade time also counts as lost time, and must also be made up before discharge. Both are added to the normal length of the soldier's enlistment.

PAY CLAIM

Q. If an enlisted man's deposit book does not agree with the military pay record at time of separation, what recourse will he have?

A. If the deposit book and military pay record are not in agreement, the lesser of the two amounts will be paid and a claim filed for any balance due with the Chief, Soldiers Deposits Division, Finance Center, U. S. Army, Indianapolis 49, Ind.

NO OVERSEAS

Q. Is an Army noncommissioned officer with 20 years' service stabilized in the United States?

A. Enlisted men in the top three pay grades with 20 years' service are ineligible for overseas assignment if they have completed at least one foreign service tour since January 1950.

Fifth Army EOD Experts Must Guard a Vast Area

FORT RILEY, Kan. — Army Explosive Ordnance Disposal experts do more than render shells harmless and clear the ranges of Fort Riley of explosive ordnance that fails to detonate.

The 550th Ordnance Detachment, Explosive Ordnance Disposal Control, has the responsibility of protecting the Western sector of the Fifth Army area from danger of "duds." This sector includes the states of Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Nebraska, North and South Dakota, Wisconsin, and Wyoming. To carry out this responsibility the 550th has four detachments under its control, the 48th, 74th, 88th, and 171st Ordnance Detachments, the latter being located at Fort Carson, Colo.

The disposal job on the post ranges is only a secondary mission of the units. Men of the detachments keep in practice doing this local "touchy job." But the big assignment makes these men responsible for all unexploded ordnance, including atomic weapons, that might land in this area of the midwest.

Army's Income Tax Runs Into Millions

FORT BENJAMIN HARRISON, Ind. — The U. S. Treasury received a check for approximately $12-million each month of 1954 from one of its governmental cousins—the Finance Center United States Army here.

This sum represented the average monthly payment of a total of more than $141-million in income taxes deducted from the payroll of Army enlisted and officer personnel during the year.

Each month, the Finance Center makes an installment payment to the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago for credit to the deposit of the Treasurer of the United States. This is applied against the total income tax payments to be withheld from uniformed Army personnel during the calendar year.

EVERY SIX MONTHS, the total of the monthly installment payments is adjusted to agree with the total dollar amount actually withheld for that period. In event the installments exceed the taxes withheld for the period, an adjustment is made on the next payment.

To keep up with the total dollar amount of taxes withheld from each service member — and to keep straight the financial situation in the governmental "family" — military pay records are called into the center every June 30 and Dec. 31.

Here, these pay records are scanned and the information about total pay and total deductions recorded permanently.

AROUND the first of each new year — in the Army as everywhere else — this accumulated information goes out to the individual taxpayer on the familiar "W-2" form.

From this point on, the relationship between the uniformed men and women on the Army payroll and the Director of Internal Revenue is a personal one. Just how many additional millions of dollars in income taxes are paid by Army officers and enlisted personnel the Finance Center cannot estimate.

Few Discrepancies in GIs' Records Slip Past Jax' Personnel Experts

FORT JACKSON, S. C.—Keeping the military records of approximately 30,000 soldiers stationed here at Fort Jackson is a big order to fill.

Since most of the soldiers trained here remain for only eight weeks and then move on to some other installation for advanced training, the turnover is terrific and the job of record-keeping is complicated.

Through the POR Check Board passes every soldier leaving Fort Jackson, and it is here that any discrepancies in records are corrected.

POR stands for Processing for Overseas Replacement, but even those moving to some other post within the ZI must go before the Board before they leave.

DURING THE TIME he is stationed at Fort Jackson, every soldier has some business to attend to at his unit personnel office. This is particularly true of basic trainees.

With the mass of paperwork required for each soldier's record, there are occasional errors. Perhaps on one of the many forms essential for the record, the man's name is misspelled or a typist has hit the wrong key in listing his service number.

Such errors can result in serious complications later in the soldier's Army service. That is the purpose of the POR Check Board—to catch these errors and see that the soldier's record is correct before he leaves Fort Jackson.

If allotment information is wrong, the man's dependents would suffer while waiting for the records to be straightened out and an allotment check to arrive. Or, if the wrong address is listed for a serviceman's next of kin, location of that person would be difficult or impossible in the event of accident or injury.

WHEN A SOLDIER RECEIVES orders to ship to a new station, he must first "clear the post"—go to different places on the post to get a certificate showing he has no unfinished business at Fort Jackson. For example, his clothing is checked to see that he has each item of issue; library records are checked to show that he has no outstanding or overdue books; Army Emergency Relief certifies that the man owes no money on loans, etc.

Then he goes through the POR Check Board. He carries his own folder of records along in front of a line of desks, behind which sit the members of the POR Check Board, each of them a specialist.

The clerks of the POR Board read to the soldier the facts contained on each form in his own personal record, insuring accuracy of the information listed for the benefit of both the soldier concerned and Army records.

If the man's identification tags contain a misspelling, or if his service number doesn't match on both his service record and his pay card, the POR clerks note these deficiencies and corrections,

Gen. Sturgis Honored

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. — Maj. Gen. Samuel D. Sturgis Jr., Army Chief of Engineers, was awarded an honorary degree of Doctor of Engineering here last week at graduation ceremonies of Rose Polytechnic Institute, where he delivered the commencement address.

DAY BEFORE a soldier's departure from Fort Jackson his records are checked by the POR Check Board. In the auditorium the soldiers are given an orientation lecture and their records are handed them by Cpl. Bennie A. Barnwell, above right and Sgt. William A. Bowman of the 506th Abn. Inf. Regt., 101st Abn. Div.

DOG TAGS are being prepared by PFC. Francis G. Shaw, at the machine at left, while Cpl. Charles D. Aye watches. When a name is misspelled or a serial number appears incorrectly on an identification tag issued a man leaving Jax, a new tag is made immediately.

where necessary, are made immediately.

A part of the Military Personnel Division, the POR Check Board is under the direction of CWO Anthony P. Casella.

The completeness of the record check at Fort Jackson was demonstrated recently when the commander of an overseas shipping point wrote that only one deficiency was found among records of 800 former Fort Jackson soldiers processed for shipment to Europe. The deficiency: a soldier lost one of his neckties en route to his new station, so he had one less tie than the records said were issued to him.

HAUS DER KUNST CLOSING

Hitler's Art Gallery Ends Days as a Club

MUNICH, Germany.—The Haus der Kunst, built by Hitler as a museum to house what he considered the best of contemporary German art, closes its doors for the last time June 26 as an American officers' club after 10 years in that capacity.

The fabulously expensive home for Hitler's choice of art was built on swampy grounds which required the sinking of pilings to reach bed rock, and led the architect to blow his brains out in despair over the extravagant construction.

Leading architects of the time thought less than nothing of the design, approved by the Fuehrer, and termed the place pompous, stuffy, middle-period railroad station. One critic, referring to the imitation Greek columns on the front of the building, called it the "Welsswurstpalast," or sausage palace.

The cornerstone for the Haus der Kunst was laid by Hitler himself in 1933. One anecdote, dealing with the laying of the stone, refers to his proclamation that the occasion symbolized the everlasting strength of the Nazi party. As Hitler made the statement he struck the stone with a mason's hammer and broke the handle as he made his prophesy.

Hitler, the anecdote concludes, was so upset that he locked himself in his apartment all the following day and would see no one.

OPENING DAY, IN 1937, saw most of the principal Nazi bigwigs in attendance. Goering, Goebbels, Hess and the Bavarian gauleiter Wagner were on hand for the celebration, as was Frau Maria Amberg, who was and still is in charge of the cleaning women at the Haus.

She, and Alois Dusik, headwaiter, remember well the days when Hitler and his hangers-on visited the museum.

They recall that whenever Hitler was there no one drank or smoked. But the instant he left, out came the cigarettes, and the bar enjoyed a thriving business.

Before the Fuehrer arrived, they remembered, plainclothes SS men swarmed into the building—some pretending to be customers, others peering from behind pillars on the lookout for potential assassins.

The day the Germans left and the American Seventh Army took over a few days before V-E Day, is a memory that both Frau Amberg and Herr Dusik remember well. German soldiers, they said, ripped off their swastikas and tunie wings and the ground outside the Haus was covered with the discarded associations with Nazism.

THE AMERICANS, they both recalled, brought food with them when they arrived, and the staff went right to work. What is now known as the Bavarian room, downstairs, eventually became the generals' mess, presided over by Gen. Patton when the Third Army replaced the Seventh.

At War II's end, the Haus was a stopover for VIP's ranging from then-Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, to Sens. Arthur Vandenberg and Tom Connally.

A Model Teacher

Here is an attractive young woman (left) walking down a street in Chicago. Where is she going? To work? To school? Perhaps either—or both. For pretty Betty Cagney, one of Chicago's most popular fashion models, has a dual career. She teaches the fifth grade at the Charles S. Brownell public school on Chicago's South Side (see picture at bottom of page) as a full-time occupation and in her spare time works as a model (see photo, center.) As a school teacher she makes $3600 a year while her earnings from modeling fees average $25 a day. Miss Cagney, now 23, was runner-up in the Miss Chicago contest in 1951, but the glamor business is not something she wants to get into as a steady thing. She has selected teaching as her life's work and has every intention of staying with it.

Wants Papa's Name

MARIA (right), the singing 17-year-old sister of Italian actress Sofia Loren (left), last week opened a court battle for the right to take the name of her natural father, a traveling salesman and the devoted lover of the mother of both girls. The court made public the knowledge common in Italian movie circles that Sofia, 20, got her real name of Sofia Scicolone only by consent of her father's legitimate wife, Nella Rivolta Scicolone, now an usher in a Rome theater. Maria, who was born to Maria Villani, Neapolitan beauty queen shortly before Nella and Riccardo Scicolone were married, now wants the same right.

CONFIDENT LIVING

Your Unlimited Possibilities

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

A WOMAN was telling me the other day about her little boy trying to move a table. He's a small child and the table he was pushing was a large one. "Honey," his mother said to him, "you can't move that table. Why, the table's as big as you are."

"I can, mummy," the child answered. "because I'm as big as the table is." That boy is a natural-born positive thinker.

TOO MANY of us fail to find success and happiness because we haven't learned to look at things in the right way. I know of a sales manager who was having trouble with his salesmen who were not making sales. They had just about given up mentally. They told him there was no business, no opportunities, no chance to do anything at all—things, they said, were bad all over.

He called them all into his office one day and pointed to a big white piece of paper with a black spot on it he had tacked to the wall.

"I want you fellows to sit here for a while and look at that paper," he told them. "And then I want you to tell me what you see." He let them sit for about fifteen minutes and then he asked, "Well, what do you see?"

"We see a black spot," they said with one accord.

"Doesn't anyone see anything else?" he asked.

No one did. They all had fixed their minds on the black spot. Not one of them mentioned the great expanse of white space that surrounded it on that piece of paper. The sales manager used this practical demonstration to point out that these men were concentrating only on the difficulties and blinding themselves to the great possibilities.

WE NEED to learn and make perfect the skill of putting our imagination to use. Robert Crawford of the University of Nebraska calls this process "creative thinking" and Alex Osborne, a great advertising genius, has termed it "imagineering." Whatever you want to call it, it is your key to finding unlimited possibilities.

Now imagination is usually dismissed along with fantasy and daydreams, but that isn't really imagination at all. Imagination is the art of projecting images; it might better be called "imaging." It is the art of picturing what you want to be. And there is a deep and profound psychological law which makes you tend to become that which you picture.

FAITH AND PRAYER, both of which help us to think right, stimulate your will to project your mind into the unlimited possibilities before you. Everything depends on your slant of mind as you face life. And, once you know how, it is very simple to shift your mental slant from seeing only the black spots to visualizing the potential of the huge white areas around the difficulties we encounter.

jazz

By TOM SCANLAN

I WOULD imagine that a jazz column devoted to reviewing new records most every week would get pretty dull, even to someone greatly interested in jazz. That's why, with a stack of some 15 new LPs and assorted 45 and 78 jazz sides to review, I think we'll skip all that this week. Most of these records are second rate, anyway.

Once upon a time you had to be quite a musician to cut a jazz record but not any more. Everybody and his little sister are putting out jazz albums now.

If you are a working musician in New York with average contacts and if you can play the blues in B flat, Fine and Dandy or Foggy Day or a simple rhythm progression in F, and haven't made a record, well, you are nowhere. Or so it seems.

It wasn't always this way. I remember when a man would break his neck getting to a record store when word got around that Pres had 16 bars on a new Count Basie Decca. Today, there are more jazz records being put out than ever before and soloists take chorus after chorus after chorus. Tempos may speed and tempos may drag, but no matter. The sides are released just the same.

When a jazz group, any kind of a jazz group, gathers for a jazz "concert," it's automatically recorded and released—willy nilly—as the "real thing," even when some usually reliable musicians on the date goof all over the place.

What does it matter, the record companies must figure, it'll sell—it's jazz, ain't it? And look, we've got two "big names" taking chorus after chorus after chorus on this session. What more is needed?

It need hardly be added that this method of recording jazz is much cheaper for the record companies and much less trouble for the musicians involved. No rehearsals. Not much worry about proper balance. No re-recording. The "live audience" and "jam session atmosphere" excuse for releasing these things is just a dodge.

Man, it's enough to make a cow laugh, as Huck Finn said.

Considerable time and thought ought to be given to all record dates.

OF COURSE, there are innumerable top-rank jazz musicians who remain unrecorded throughout all this current jazz record boom.

Some because of personal integrity ("I'll starve before I work for that bum!") and others simply because some record company genius (non-musician type) known as an A&R man (Artists and Repertoire) has never heard him play and wouldn't know real talent if he did.

So maybe such musicians will get a break later. And so maybe they won't.

AS A SIMILAR example, there is an excellent guitarist and singer in Washington who would rather be out of work than work for either one of Washington's best know big bands.

This guy could go on the road with a name band, too, but there-in lies starvation usually, as any working musician will tell you, and the alternative, working for some square jazz scavenger (non-musician type) who is living off the sweat and talent of others, is not the lesser of the two evils because that kind of thing gets in a man's craw.

But jazz scavengers are legend. And, after all, as with any other trade, where this is loot there will always be operators busily operating.

SPEAKING generally of jazz, there is another thing that comes to mind. It's been said many times before but it may be worth saying again.

This music, jazz, is important music. And not simply because it is the only art form born and bred in this country.

It is as totally unlike European music (classical and popular) as Mark Twain is unlike T. S. Eliot and it is no wonder that many music lovers cannot get with it.

Jazz is a people's music, in a way, as Shakespeare was a people's playwright. Shakespeare's plays, you will recall, were produced on the other side of the Thames (similar to our other side of the railroad tracks) where pickpockets and bear baiting cages flourished. Jazz has been nurtured in a similar environment.

JAZZ, TOO, is fight. It is receiving more and more serious attention as the years go by, but it is still very much of a fight. A fight for recognition, mostly. A fight for life, sometimes. And always a fight with squares in high and low places.

It's a fight to play the music you want to play, how you want to play it, or feel it. A fight with clubowners who want you to "cut out that noise and play more melody." A fight to create something new yet something natural.

Jazz is musicianship, too. A man has to know his instrument well to play good jazz. This I'm lost without the music in front of me stuff just won't do. If a musician doesn't know the progressions, if he can't think and transpose quickly and accurately, he's lost in a jazz band.

That some musicians have gained considerable recognition as jazz artists without these basic requirements is odd, maybe, but understandable. Some of our most famous actors in Hollywood can't act; some of our most famous artists can't draw; some of our most famous writers can't write.

Jazz is as American as baseball or hot dogs or Mark Twain, but this kind of music is more often than not treated with greater respect in other countries than it is here. A prophet is frequently without honor in his hometown, or however that line goes.

The Pentagon, headquarters of the Department of Defense, is the world's largest office building. It is twice as large as the Merchandise Mart in Chicago and has three times the floor space of the Empire State Building, New York. The National Capitol would fit into any one of its five wedge-shaped sections.

Are Hunters People?

By PAUL GOOD

"It looks like the lemur is on his way out," I said yesterday to my guide and tormentor.

"Well, kindly tell him to shut the door as he leaves as I feel a draft on my back," he said.

"I'm being serious, Sarge."

"Not so anybody could notice. Shut that door an' when you get finished come back an' tell me what the hell a lemur is so we can carry on this conversation on an intelligent, mutually-beneficial, time-killin' plane."

I did as bade.

"Sarge, a lemur is a monkey-like little animal with a striped tail and a wistful look on his face. They're found on the island of Madagascar. But I just read in the morning paper that widespread hunting along with other things has just about made the lemur extinct. I think it's a shame that any animal has to be slaughtered out of existence for no good reason. It isn't right."

"THERE'S A LOT of things ain't right, includin' the state of mind of Ike's caddy what just tried to join the Explorer's Club seein' as how he spends more time in the woods than Lewis an' Clark did. Since you can't do nothin' about it there ain't much sense in lettin' things like the lemur problem bother you. But I gotta admit me an' hunters see eye to eye about as good as two cross-eyed hypnotists tryin' to put each other under."

"I wouldn't know if they're killin' these lemur friends of yours for some good reason or not. It could be the beasts make up into a tasty stew suitable for cannin'. If that's the reason they're huntin' 'em, you can quit worryin' right now that the lemurs will ever get distinct. If there's money to be made from somethin', the people makin' it will never let the somethin' pass from the face of the earth. The dodo probly got put out of business because he tasted so tough you couldn't sell one for cat food. But the turkey is here to stay for the simple reason that he's worthwhile killin'."

"As far as people huntin' lemurs for the hell of it go, I gotta agree with you, sonny. Especially the kind of hunters they got clutterin' up places like Africa nowadays. If a man come up to me with a spear in his hand, water rations an' jerked beef in his knapsack, an' a lion-hatin' look in his eye, an' told me he was off to the lightest part of Darkest Africa to bag lions, I'd say,

"Jolly good luck to you, my man. You're armed skimpy enough to make it a even fight from both sides. You're a true son of nature an' I hope I see you again some day, even though I always root for lions instead of hunters."

"BUT WHAT'S your average big game hunter like today? Excludin', of course, them he-man writers like Ernie Hemingway an' Robert Ruark what can frighten half the animals in the jungle to death just by hittin' the capital 'T' on their typewriters. I'll tell you what. They're people what have been huntin' the dollar for years an' done a damn fine job of it. Comes the day they want a little excitement, so off they go to Africa, leavin' behind a smilin' clerk at Abercromby an' Fitch.

"First thing after arrivin' in the Congo, they rent the local hunter. These hunters is all tremendous brave men, if you'll believe what's wrote about 'em. When they're not drinkin', they're lovin', an' when they're not lovin' they're drinkin', an' when they get a chance to set down a blonde or a glass they risk their lives shootin' animals."

"At any rate, Mr. Bucks what hired the local hunter winds up sub-lettin' a safari. This consists of a battalion of native bearers loaded down with Scotch, club soda, air-conditioned tents an' enough ammunition to supply both sides in a Central American banana war. Into the heart of the jungle goes this brave band, with no more firepower than a German Panzer regiment."

"BY AN' BY, the local hunter spots four or five rheumatic lions takin' some sun after lunchin' on zebra. The beasts are so far away they look the size of Siamese cats but the gun the hunter slips Mr. Bucks has a telescopic sight that would bring the moon to a arm's length. The bullet it fires ain't much bigger than the shell for a pack howitzer. Mr. Bucks misses the lion by three feet but the shell sends up such a storm of dirt the lion is promptly buried alive."

"This makes Mr. Bucks a member of the Lion Killers Marchin' an' Chowder Society. People call him a hunter, which is what he calls himself. I call him a wart on the bosom of Ma Nature, sonny, an' look forward to the day some muscular young lion unexpectedly drops in on him for lunch."

CLASSICAL RECORDS

By E. KAHN

History of Music in Sound, Vol. VI: The Growth of Instrumental Music (1630-1750). (2-12" RCA Victor LM-6031) $10.50.

This set of records includes works by such famous names as Bach, Handel, Purcell, Corelli, Telemann, and Vivaldi. But the examples that are given are lesser-known works, readily recognizable as products of the masters, yet refreshingly new. It's nice to have this period in music pass in review.

The editors have made some wise selections here. There are two sets of chorales which use the same themes—one by Pachelbel, one by Bach; another contrasting Buxtehude and Bach—which show very clearly the process of development that music was then undergoing. In both cases, the Bach versions are far more highly developed, more intricate musically. This doesn't necessarily indicate Bach's musical "superiority." It helps us to see how much Bach owes to his musical ancestors as well as what his great contributions were.

A sort of musical oddity in the album is a violin sonata by Biber. It was written to be played with the violin not tuned normally. Nevertheless, it is interesting rather than weird. Winifred Roberts turns in a splendid performance, and it takes considerable virtuosity to do justice to this music.

All in all, two records full of lovely music that should appeal to both listeners and students. The album comes with a helpful book of notes by the Oxford University Press.

Haydn, Symphony No. 92 in G ("Oxford"); Beethoven, Lenore, Coriolan, and Prometheus Overtures. Royal Orchestra, Copenhagen, and the Philharmonia Orchestra, conducted by Nikolai Malko. (12" RCA Bluebird LBC-1087) $2.98.

This record is a good buy. For some reason, RCA has put out in the low-priced Bluebird line a record that it might have chosen to sell in the premium-priced HMV series. Malko records for HMV in England, but Americans are getting a pretty good deal here.

The "Oxford" symphony belongs in any good-sized basic record library. It's one of the prolific Haydn's well-known compositions. It's a nice example of his work, but it has not become over-familiar by constant repetition in the concert hall. Very gay music, often vigorous, and in spots boisterous.

The three well-known Beethoven overtures are staples of the orchestral diet. They're among the finest of Beethoven's short works, written during his greatest period, and are given satisfactory performances.

POPULAR RECORDS

TWO of the most promising of the younger vocalists gaining recognition through their work on records are MGM's Betty Madigan and Decca's Caterina Valente.

Betty's only big hit to date has been "Joey" (MGM 11601) but several of her other sides have sold fairly well. Her latest for MGM, "Wonderful Words," backed by "I Had a Heart," might well rate high in the sales charts at the end of the month.

Betty

Recently the slender brunette signed a motion picture contract with MGM and completed screen tests in Hollywood. She has also been a success in "smart" supper clubs in the East.

CATERINA Valente's background is unusual. Eight months or so ago she had little claim to fame and was singing in a small bistro in West Berlin.

Then Caterina recorded Ernesto Lecuona's "Malaguena" in German for Polydor, a European record company. Decca picked up the master and distributed it throughout the U. S. Soon the air waves were bombarded with Caterina's intense and dramatic version of this Lecuona melody. "Who is she?" everyone began to ask.

The answer, in brief: Miss Valente is a striking brunette in her early twenties. Her father was Spanish and her mother both Swedish and Italian. She sings in many languages. Her parents were show people (her mother once sang at the Palace) and the Valente family has lived and performed in every country in Europe.

And, perhaps most importantly, she is one of the few vocalists around today who is not lost without a microphone. In other words, she has good pipes.

STEVE ALLEN'S 12-inch piano album (Coral LP 57004) which the talented master of ceremonies has mentioned on his TV program is pleasant enough, thanks to a fine studio orchestra and the standards selected. Steve plays capable but a routine kind of piano. If he were not Steve Allen, this album would never have been made. Naturally.

SUNNY GALE, whose vocal style is somewhat similar to that of Kay Starr's, belts out "If I Could Be With You and Mean to Me" on a new EP (RCA-Victor 600). Two other songs are included: "Am I a Toy or a Treasure" and "The Gypsy's Warning."

Hot Crickets

The number of chirps certain crickets make is a fairly accurate thermometer. The hotter it gets the faster the cricket will rub his wings together. This rubbing makes the cricket chirp. To get the temperature, count the number of chirps for 14 seconds, then add 40. For instance, if the cricket chirps 40 times in 14 seconds, the temperature is 80.

Quaker Attitudes

Though all Quakers are opposed to war, not all of them are conscientious objectors. In World War II, about three-fourths of the 12,000 Quakers called up served as combatants or medical corpsmen.

BOOKS

Our History Loaded with Horseshoes

CHANCE OR DESTINY: Turning Points in American History, by Oscar Handlin; Boston: Atlantic-Little, Brown; 220 pages; $3.75.

That old chestnut about how a shoe, horse, battle, nation, etc. was lost for want of a nail underscores the tremendous influence that chance plays in the lives of men. And there never was a nation more heavily weighted with horseshoes than the United States during its rocketing rise in world affairs.

Mr. Handlin, 1952 Pulitzer Prize winner for U. S. history, takes an interesting look at eight events which played key roles in our rise as a nation. Each of these stories is shot through with "a miraculous streak of luck that, at one turning point after another, directed fortune (our) way."

The purchase of Alaska is a typical example of the theme of this excellently written death of an anxious lover, a humiliating defeat on the fields of Crimen, and the decay of a great Asian empire" we might have a Russian dagger pointed at us from 400 miles away rather than thousands.

The "anxious lover" was Nikolai Petrovich Rezanov, who married the daughter of the leader of the first Russian expedition to Alaska. After obtaining a charter from the Czar, Rezanov sailed to California to do business with the Spaniards.

While there he fell in love with the daughter of the Spanish commandant. Determined to dissolve his Russian marriage, Rezanov started the long trip to Moscow but died on the way. His company, deprived of his leading leadership, sunk to the depths of lethargy.

Later Russia was defeated in the Crimea, one of a series of contests of territorial aims brought about by the decline of the aging Ottoman and Manchu empires. This mixture of events dimmed Russian eyes on the far horizons, opening the way for Secretary of State William H. Seward to step in.

TODAY WE ARE coming to realize that history is a product of human factors rather than some outside, general law. The importance of understanding what goes into the making of history is pointed out by the writer:

"It may help men to remember now that if nothing is inevitable, and chance within the limits of the situation is everywhere a possibility, then there is always scope for the assertion of man's influence."

It is something to remember in this age of fear. Mr. Handlin may become a two-time Pulitzer Prize winner with this outstanding volume.—H. C. L.

In Lighthouses, 10-Year Men Are Considered Greenhorns

KEEPERS OF THE LIGHTS, by Hans Christian Adamson, Greenburg, N. Y., 430 Pages, with appendix and index. $5.50.

Keepers of the Lights, is, as the publishers state with considerable justice, a book which needed to be written. There are innumerable booklets, articles and even fiction dealing with light houses and their keepers, but not to this reviewer's knowledge has a single volume contained so thorough and detailed a store of lighthouse lore.

Hans Christian Adamson was one of the passengers in the raft along with Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker which drifted in the Pacific during War II.

He writes with warmth, humor and great fondness and respect for the keepers of the lights, and his anecdotes and factual data make absorbing reading for persons whose contact with the sea is strictly of the armchair category, and for those who have sailed the oceans.

Sample observation on light-keepers as a type: "Before the Coast Guard took over and the 65-year retirement age became effective . . . A man with only 10 years of lighthouse duty was still a greenhorn. One with 25 years of duty was getting into the know of things but could still turn out to be a restless drifter. However when a man had half a century or so to his credit, then he was really regarded as a 'wickie' who had settled down to a steady occupation."

Sample historical note on ship construction: "The construction of a ship such as the No. 1 (built in 1855 and retired in 1930) was almost a ritual. The tough oak timber that was to go into her was cut from the swamps of southeastern Virginia. Then it was carried to New England where it was sunk in the blue mud of some cove and allowed to season. When her hull was completed it consisted of the outside frame and an inner shell. In the space between salt was poured to harden the wood until it became virtually petrified, so hard that it defied the carpenter's brace and bit."

Sample critical note on lighthouses, attributed to Ambrose Bierce, the San Francisco philosopher: "A lighthouse is a tall building on the seashore where the government maintains a lamp and a friend of a politician."—L. H.

Novel Shows Europeans' War II Plight

THE LAST TEMPTATION, by Joseph Viertel. Simon and Schuster, N. Y. 737 pages. $3.95.

This lengthy first novel really should have been two stories. The first part of the book deals with a central European family caught up in the holocaust of pogroms and War II. The second half describes this family's adventures in Palestine, particularly during the war between Israel and its Arab neighbors.

The Mamorek family consisted of a Czechoslovakian Davis Cup winner, his pretty young Viennese wife, and their son. The family was Jewish. It belatedly realized its mortal danger in the Europe of 1938 and fled to Rome. At the end of War II, it boarded an overcrowded refugee boat and literally swam ashore in Palestine to evade the British.

To this point, the story reflects what happened to a whole generation of people. After the Mamoreks' arrival in Palestine, the story starts off on a new plot, culminating in the wrongful execution of the family for betraying Israel during its war against the Arabs.

One outstanding achievement is the author's portrayal of the colonel who confirms the death sentence and orders the execution. Viertel makes his readers realize how an important decision can seem so right in the middle of a crisis, and so wrong a few days later.

Your Dollars and Sense

By LaMONTE F. DAVIS

THAT NEW HOME you buy this summer is going to cost you more than it would have earlier this year.

The increase—from $200 to $400—is particularly true in the $10,000 to $18,000 price house. That's the price range in which most servicemen and their families are interested.

The price increase has been caused by wage boosts for carpenters, brick layers, painters, and the like. Lumber and other building materials also cost more.

Almost all builders of new homes are boosting their prices right now or plan to very soon. At the same time, many of them are adding a few "extras" to the houses they're building. The idea is to make the house more attractive to the prospect and his wife.

HOME-BUYERS are looking around more than before. But houses are still selling about as well as they have during the last year.

The housing market has cooled off a bit since a few years ago. Then you took what you could get at the price the seller asked. Now it's more of a buyer's market—in selection, if not in lower prices.

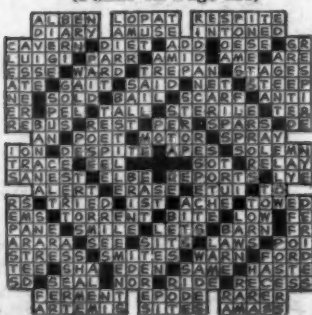

Servicemen have become more interested in home-buying since the Housing Act of 1954 was passed. It sets up a loan program to help active duty personnel build or buy a one-family home with the aid of a Federal Housing Administration insured mortgage.

Construction Firm Has a New Issue

WASHINGTON. — Assets of JANAF, Inc., have increased since its organization in August 1953 to $894,000, and capitalization to $1,000,000, says its organizer, James K. Beasley, former Navy commander.

Preferred stock has been placed on a 6% dividend basis. A new issue of 28,000 shares of 6% cumulative preferred and 28,800 shares of common, has been filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission. Already more than $100,000 worth of the issue has been subscribed tentatively, says Beasley.

JANAF's first project is Admiralty Acres, between Norfolk and Virginia Beach, Va. Home sales and construction are well under way. Plans for the start of the Admiralty Hotel, a $1,300,000, 170-room, air conditioned, completely modern motor hotel have just been announced. The hotel will have dining rooms, restaurant, Key Club, swimming pool, facilities for children, and other outstanding features.

On Business

HOW TIMES have changed . . . Especially incomes in the last 40 years . . . Back in 1914 workers for the auto makers drew $2.34 for a nine-hour day . . . and fringe benefits were unknown . . . Now, with the new contracts signed this week, they get $2.82 an hour . . . including fringe benefits.

To wear a tie or not to wear a tie? . . . Uniform of the day covers that situation during duty hours . . . Off-duty is different . . . So a Florida man this week came up with a new idea which he patented . . . The shirt collar bears the two halves of a bow tie . . . All the wearer has to do is button the collar . . . The fastener looks like the tie's knot.

Investors opened 9253 new accounts with mutual fund firms in May . . . That's the word this week from the National Assn. of Investment Companies . . . Net assets of 117 mutual fund companies now total almost $7-billion . . . That shows how popular the fund idea is with investors.

Vet is 38

The average age of all living veterans is slightly over 38 years. The estimated age distribution of veterans in civil life as of Dec. 31, 1954—latest data available—shows that Korea veterans average 24.6 years, World War II veterans have attained an average of 35.7 years, and World War I veterans average just under 61 years old.

"I don't blame you at all, Muzzy, for refusing to accept a mere 50 points for beating them one at three diamonds," he said. "You were trying for the magnificent score of 90 points, which is what we would have got for making three spades."

"How did I know they couldn't make three diamonds," sulked Mr. Muzzy.

"What if they COULD make it?" Mr. Champion screamed. "It's only 60 points—and you went down 1100 at your bid."

Mr. Champion was even righter than usual. Mr. Muzzy's bidding was indefensible. Especially when you are vulnerable and the opponents are not, why fight over a measly part score at the risk of a damaging set? And incidentally the right opening bid on Mr. Muzzy's minimum hand was a club—not a spade.

A good signal by Mrs. Keen was an important factor in the four-trick set. Mr. Dale led the king of clubs, Mrs. Keen played the seven and Mr. Muzzy won. He led his lone diamond and Mr. Dale took the ace.

The queen of clubs was cashed and on the jack of clubs Mrs. Keen flashed the eight of hearts. Mr. Dale then led a low heart to her king. On the heart return the nine lost to the jack.

Mr. Dale then led his last club and, in desperation, Mr. Muzzy ruffed with dummy's ten of spades. Mrs. Keen overruffed with the jack and now Mr. Dale's spade holding was good for two more winners. Down four.

If Mr. Dale had led his fourth club before picking up his side's two heart winners, Mr. Muzzy could have enjoyed a better result by discarding a heart from the board on the fourth club lead.

One Way to Run a Railroad

USING A SIMPLE, but complete, layout of a modern railroad, students at the Army Transportation School learn all rail operations from writing train orders to uncoupling cars. Pvt. Theodore J. Bohnenkamp is making out a report here as a "troop train" goes by his "station." Instructions and information are handled over his intercom telephone, linked to other "station" booths in the system.

'Toy' Railroad Teaches TC Men How to Run Real Ones

FORT EUSTIS, Va. — The Army's Transportation School here has designed and is now using a new type of training aid for instructing dispatchers and operators on military railroads.

Conceived by Maj. James E. McClooney of the Rail Department, it consists of a series of booths, each containing a field telephone, a section of "track" with sidings, a timetable, and train order blanks. The tracks are actually bicycle chains which pull along model trains made of wood.

The booths represent stations along a simulated 50 miles of railway, and one student operator is assigned to each. As the chains, powered by electric motors, carry the train or trains from booth to booth, the student reports their arrival, departure, and any special action over the phone to a dispatcher who coordinates and supervises the operation. The dispatcher, who stations himself near the line, receives messages from his operators and sends them appropriate orders.

BOOTHs ARE constructed so that no student can see into the adjoining compartment. Students must therefore rely on their timetables and over-the-phone information in planning action. As in a real railroad situation, they must keep constantly on the alert to meet unforeseen occurrences.

The operators along the way and at the terminals make up trains, write out train orders, report deviations in schedules to the dispatcher, check or change markers and signals, note car numbers, notify "train crews" of simulated hot journal boxes and slipping wheels, run trains onto sidings and allow those with high priority to pass through, uncouple cars, and switch tracks. Several separate lengths of bicycle chains, geared for different speeds, simulate a multiple track system and make possible an increase in the number of trains and the complexities of the problems.

The numerous blocks of wood are shaped and painted to resemble passenger and freight cars and diesel and steam locomotives so that a greater effect of reality is achieved. These "cars" and engines were constructed by T/School's versatile Training Aids Department.

THIS ELABORATE rail setup, over 100 feet long, enables soldier-trainmen to learn the rudiments of operating a railway division without the trouble and expense of using actual railroad facilities.

IN LAND OF MIDNIGHT SUN

Engineers Work 'Round the Clock

LADD AFB, Alaska. — The rumble of the heavy equipment belonging to the 59th Engr. (Const.) Co. never ceases at Ladd Air Force Base, where this unit of the 4th Inf. Regt. has a two-fold job of military construction and providing combat engineer support to the regiment.

During the present construction season, the engineers work around the clock. There are two 12-hour shifts for heavy equipment operators, and the machines never stop except for minor maintenance.

Two men start in the morning at 6 a.m. and work in the field till 4 p.m. The next two hours are used for maintenance and repairs. After this, two new operators take over and they do exactly the same thing until they are relieved in the morning.

As a result of the stepped-up schedule, it is possible to take advantage of all the daylight hours in the "Land of the Midnight Sun."

AT PRESENT, this group is landscaping the Ladd Army area. This includes the building of six baseball diamonds and the filling of Monterey Lake. Also, these men are responsible for the construction of the Pony League Baseball Park for the younger generation in Fairbanks, Alaska.

Although summer is the most important season of the year with regard to construction, the men are busy throughout the winter months. Last winter the engineers worked on roads, antiaircraft gun sites, snow clearance, and maintenance of equipment.

They also gave engineer support to the infantry on maneuvers as well as taking their own training. Classes for equipment operators and other specialized jobs were given during the winter.

New Airfield Is Dedicated At Ft. Bragg

FORT BRAGG, N. C. — The Army's newest airdrome — Simmons Army Airfield — was officially dedicated here last week. The field, named in honor of the late WO Herbert W. Simmons who died in a helicopter crash in November 1953, will be one of the largest Army airfields in this area when completed.

Plans for the development of the airfield were disclosed by Maj. Edward C. Broadhurst, executive officer of the 8th Helicopter Bn, which has been using the site, known as Smith Lake Airfield, since September 1953. According to the major, several additions to the existing facilities will be completed by March of next year. These include a new hangar, control tower, fuel dispensing point, parts warehouse, central heating plant, and an operations building which will include a pilots' lounge and flight planning room.

WO Simmons' widow and members of his immediate family attended the ceremonies, where Mrs. Simmons unveiled a plaque in memory of her husband. She was introduced by Maj. Gen. Joseph P. Cleland, CG of Fort Bragg and the XVIII Abn. Corps.

The development plans for an estimated outlay of $810,000.

351st Infantry Bell Cast From Shells of 4 Nations

CAMP RUCKER, Ala.—When the 351st Inf. Regt. returned from Trieste in December 1954 for the first time in 11 years it brought with it a single memento which symbolized the years it had spent in Europe since War II.

The token was a bell, and like the peace the regiment maintained in Trieste, it too was forged from the instruments of war.

It was in February 1950, that Chaplain (Maj.) William V. O'Connor, at that time a captain assigned as regimental chaplain, contracted with a shipfitting foundry in Trieste to cast the bell.

The purchase price of 125,000

lire ($200) was to be raised by contributions from the officers and enlisted men of the 351st at religious services.

OUTWARDLY the contract between Chaplain O'Connor and the foundry was not unusual. The bell was to be of the California mission type, weather resistant, and counter-balanced to allow ringing by hand strap. However, the composition of the bell guaranteed that the men of four countries who had not lived to see peace come to the Morgan Line would not be forgotten. Shells exploded by the British, Yugoslav, German and American 88th Div. forces which had fought through the area were salvaged, and from them the bell was cast.

On Memorial Day, 1950, the bell, bearing the crest of the 351st and the inscription "In Memoriam To Our Comrades Who Died In Battle—351st Infantry Regiment—U. S. A." was dedicated in front of the regimental chapel at Opicina, Trieste.

TODAY THE BELL stands before the regimental chapel here at Rucker, where it is tolled by Chaplains (Capt.) Boyce H. Creamer and (First Lt.) Paul K. McAfee as a call to services.

Many of the men who now pass the bell were scarcely old enough to read of the 351st in the years when, with the 88th Div., it pushed from Naples to the Brenner Pass. But the tolling bell brings them their heritage.

Adirondack Resorts Streamlined

By PHILIP TRIPPE

New construction—more than two million dollars worth—is streamlining the Adirondacks for summer.

Cabins, motels and restaurants have been added to this section of New York.

Many old hotels, with years of tradition behind them, are making renovations and have added sports facilities of every type.

Still wild and ruggedly beautiful, the Adirondacks now has highways and main streets busy from May till October with the activity of thousands of visitors.

PRINCIPAL attractions in the region are still the natural wonders. Special features include the famous Ausable Chasm, the Natural Stone Bridge and the Caves at Pottersville, plus the wonderful highway to the summit of Whiteface Mountain at Wilmington.

Much of Adirondack life in the summer is on the water. Public beaches have been added in many communities this year. The Chestertown Conservation Club has a unique arrangement for junior. Adults are allowed on the stream only for instruction purposes, and the specially stocked water gives the youngsters convenient safe sport.

FISHING is the popular sport right now, in the Adirondacks. There are many contests open to visitors, with prizes offered by local Rod and Gun Clubs.

On the fourth of July weekend, there will be many events for vacationists.

Motor boat races, under the auspices of the American Power Boat Association, will be held throughout the summer at Lake George, Schroon Lake, Loon Lake and Friends Lake.

During July and August, power boat racing is planned for Long Lake, Saranac Lake, Old Forge, Lake Placid and Silver Lake.

There will be weekly music concerts at Deerwood Music Camp near Saranac Lake.

An Adirondack museum is to be built at Blue Mountain Lake, ready for visitors in 1956. It will display many of man's activities in these mountains—with the history of the region told in contour maps. History, geology and folklore of the Adirondacks have been gathered at Elizabethtown at the recently opened Adirondack Center.

Reserve Divisions To Be Reorganized

WASHINGTON.—The reorganization of two Second Army Reserve combat divisions as replacement training center infantry divisions may be the forerunner of similar changes in other Army areas.

Scheduled conversion of the Army's Reserve's 80th and 100th Inf. Divs. was announced by Second Army headquarters this week. The announcement said the changes will result from the "current . . . Army reduction in Reserve combat divisions needed in a general mobilization."

The Army adopted a new troop program last January. Details of the program were not announced, but it was understood that several changes in the Reserve organization were involved.

One Army source said neither the Army nor the Defense Department will issue news releases of reorganization activity on a nationwide scale. The changes will be announced by the Army area commanders concerned.

THE 80TH INF. DIV., commanded by Maj. Gen. William M. Stokes, is made up of Reservists from Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia, with division headquarters in Richmond, Va.

Headquarters of the 100th Div. is in Louisville, Ky. It is commanded by Maj. Gen. Frederick M. Warren and is composed of men from Kentucky and West Virginia.

Lt. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, Second Army commander, said the area will keep two Army Reserve infantry divisions on a combat basis. They are the 79th in Pennsylvania and the 83d in Ohio.

Parks said the location of the 79th and 83d in more densely populated areas gives them a greater manpower potential from which to draw in the event of rapid mobilization.

The fact that each is confined to a single state assures the Army of tighter control in an emergency, he said.

Reorganization plans now pending will not affect summer training of members of the 80th and 100th Divs. this year.

Devens to Signal Military Air Alerts in Boston Area

FORT DEVENS, Mass. — Fort Devens has been designated as the key post for receiving and transmitting military air raid warnings for the following installations, as well as to the units stationed on the post: Boston Army Base, Watertown Arsenal, Springfield Armory, Murphy Army Hospital and Maine Military District.

The civilian populace will receive its warnings through Civil Defense agencies.

Military warnings will be under direction of the post duty officer and the staff duty officer, cooperating with the provost marshal, all detachments of the 1170th SU except the U. S. Army Hospital, the 18th Army Band, and Post G-2 and G-4. The hospital will have its own procedure, already established.

Complete plans are ready for the movement and disposition of military personnel and equipment, as well as for civilian employees who will evacuate with the military personnel. All sections have been instructed as to location of shelters and the procedure to follow. Special instructions apply to residents of the military housing areas.

CAMP OTSU, Japan.—Japanese and American women enjoyed an opportunity to become better acquainted when the American members of the Thirty-Thirty Club entertained Japanese members at Camp Otsu recently. A luncheon was served to members at various homes in the Ojiyama dependent housing area.

The Japanese women were taken on a tour of Army Service Club No. 36 at Camp Otsu later in the afternoon. The ladies also enjoyed piano selections by Cpl. Sam Ortega and a violin solo by Cpl. Bill Peters, accompanied by Sgt. Bob Applegate at the piano.

Abn. Trainee Speaks Four Languages

FORT BRAGG, N. C. — Pvt. Charles E. Beaumont, a member of the 504th Abn. Inf. Regt., a unit of the 82d Abn. Div., can speak four foreign languages fluently.

Attending the Royal Academy in Madrid, Spain, for four years and the National University of Mexico for one year, Pvt. Beaumont picked up Italian, Spanish, French, and Portuguese to such an extent that he speaks the languages as well as English.

Along with the fluent knowledge of four languages, he has visited France, Italy, Spain, Mexico, Brazil, Portugal, Chile, Peru, Holland, Belgium, and Morocco.

As a student at the Royal Academy, he majored in Economics and Languages. During his spare time, he tutored students in English.

Camp Roberts Opens For Summer Training

FORT ORD, Calif.—Over 10,000 men of the 49th National Guard Inf. Div. have started summer training at Camp Roberts.

The training program, supervised by Maj. Gen. E. K. Wright, commanding general of the 6th Inf. Div. and Fort Ord, will reach its peak next week when approximately 13,000 men will participate in the Camp Roberts activities.

The 10-week training program is under direct support of the Reserve Components Training Camp, Camp Roberts, commanded by Col. Harry A. Welsch. It is being conducted for National Guard and Army Reserve units.

The administrative work is accomplished by approximately 2000 active Army personnel from Fort Ord, Fort Lewis, Wash., Presidio of San Francisco, Camp Irwin, Fort Mac Arthur, and Fort Huachuca, Ariz. The largest portion of these support troops are from the 23d Inf. Regt., 2d Inf. Div., Fort Lewis.

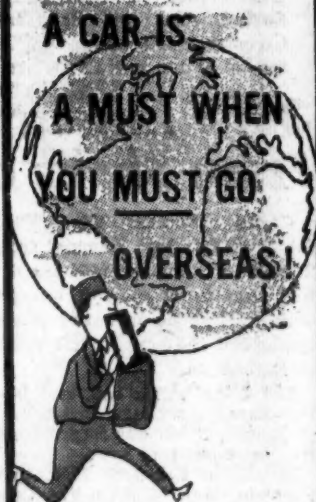

THE SECOND PHASE will begin with the arrival of 2500 men of the 63d Inf. Reserve Div. July 10, from Los Angeles. The 91st Inf. Div. (USAR Presidio of San Francisco) will arrive July 24 with 27,000 men.

The last major group to participate will consist of 7000 troops of the 40th National Guard Armcd. Div. from Los Angeles arriving Aug. 12. Each unit will participate in the training for two weeks.

All troops are using the main garrison of Camp Roberts where 247 barracks and 63 mess halls are available. No facilities of the Eastern Garrison will be used with the sole exception of the Camp

Air Strip. Ten classrooms will be used for instructional purposes.

One portion of the training will consist of maneuvers at Hunter-Liggett Military Reservation for two and three day periods with the primary purpose being to take advantage of the adequate facilities of the various ranges located there. There will be approximately 126 range houses opened in accordance with the firing range activities.

Knox Thrift Shop Presents $1200 Scholarship to Girl

FORT KNOX, Ky.—Joan Steiner, valedictorian of the class of 1955 at the Fort Knox High School, was announced as the winner of the $1200 Thrift Shop scholarship at graduation ceremonies.

The award was presented to Joan by Thrift Shop president Mrs. Marvin W. Ludington, on behalf of the Thrift Shop board of directors and the volunteers who had worked to make the scholarship possible.

(The $1200 scholarship was the largest single donation to be made by the Shop so far this year, although $4574.98 has been presented in smaller amounts to various activities on post during the past year.)

Joan will use the money to further her education in Europe. She also received a $50 award from the PTA for her outstanding academic rating, as did Marti Elder, class salutatorian.

"On a budget, General?"

"Get the inexpensive cut of veal - SPRY makes the difference!"

Here's all you do! Combine in small bowl: 1/4 cup of Spry, melted, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper. Rub Spry mixture thoroughly into all surfaces of a 3-lb. roast of veal. If you buy a rolled roast, have the end chopped and rolled into the roast. Place meat in shallow roasting pan and roast in moderate oven (350° F.) about 3 hours.

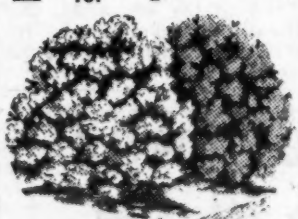

Just this little bit of Spry seeping down through your roast protects it from cooking dry. Lever Brothers guarantees that with Spry you can make juicy, tender roasts from inexpensive cuts of veal! You'll agree or we'll return your money.

SPRY makes just about everything you cook taste better!

P.S. For more recipes, drop a postcard to Spry, Lever Brothers, 390 Park Ave., N. Y. 22, N. Y.

PICTURE an Army post if you can where soldiers fish their way to and from lunch, and back again to family quarters when the day's duty is done!

It sounds improbable, but the post PIO at Fort Slocum, on David's Island in Long Island Sound, N. Y., says this is a familiar sight there.

The soldiers, he reports, walk along the island seawall fishing for whatever the season has to offer. Early spring brings flounder to swell the family freezers, followed in early summer by porgies and sea bass, and later by the wary, hard-fighting striped bass.

Many officers and men, the PIO says, can be found along the seawall in good weather or bad, during off-duty hours away from their assignments to the major post units—the Army Information School, Chaplain School, Chaplain Board, Btry D, 66th AAA Missile Bn., and the 1207th SU. Most are content to bring in whatever takes a bait, but the striped bass is the most highly prized catch of them all.

"Hanging one is like hooking the Florida Flyer," explains M/Sgt. Edward H. Milner, sergeant major of the information school and one of the post's most enthusiastic anglers.

In addition to the front-door fishing, Slocum anglers also can board fishing launches which run out daily from nearby New Rochelle to east Long Island Sound for blues, weakfish, whiting and tomcod, as well as the species named above. And for those who don't own their own, post Special Services will furnish tackle.

Fisherman's Aid

From time to time this column has recommended various charts and guide booklets that help fishermen explore unfamiliar waters.

By far the finest of these aids that we've ever seen—and used—are the charts covering parts of the Atlantic Coast and Chesapeake Bay put out by Sportsmen's Guides, Inc. Regular Coast and Geodetic charts are used to provide hydrographic data such as soundings, type of bottom, channels, landmarks, etc., while overlays pinpoint all the information an angler could ask for, such as:

Type of fishing, best seasons, species found, baits to use, names, phone numbers and addresses of charter boat skippers, boat rental operators and surf guides (with or without beach buggies), costs, accommodations, piers—everything including tips of the sort you accumulate only through long local experience.

series are No. 15, covering the North Carolina coast from Currituck Sound to Ocracoke Inlet, and No. 16, from Ocracoke Inlet to New River. A third, No. 17, from New River to Cape Fear is in the mill, and Jim Rathbun, the Marine lieutenant colonel who spends his spare time assembling the on-the-spot data that goes into these guides, hopes to have it finished before the end of summer.

A new feature of the two latest charts is a list of hunting accommodations, guides, costs and other information on hunting in the waterfowl-deer-quail sections of Eastern Carolina, including the full scoop on famed Lake Mattamuskeet.

These new charts, like others in the series, are sold in local sporting goods stores. If they can't supply you, write directly to Sportsmen's Guides, Inc., Box 338, Hyattsville, Md. Charts are $1 each (except No. 9, Barnegat Light to Cape May, which is $1.50) plus three cents postage each.

Not Like Home

Down at Camp Gordon, Pvt. Gerald W. Howard, of Ladysmith, Wis., is rehearsing the story he'll tell the fishermen back home when he gets the chance.

He was invited by another Gordon soldier, PFC James E. Robinson, to spend a recent weekend fishing at Beaufort, S. C., Robinson's hometown. The outcome was a 30-minute battle with a 400-pound shark which Howard landed.

To saltwater fisherman Robinson, the 10-footer was old stuff. But to landlubber Howard it was "a day never to be forgotten." Both are planning another trip as soon as they can get leave.

Gets Medical Post

WASHINGTON.—Lt. Col. Herschel E. Griffin, MC, has assumed his new duties in the Army Surgeon General's office as chief of the immunization section, infectious disease control branch, preventive medicine division. He succeeds Maj. John D. Lawson.

"I have a weakness for feeding pigeons, too—not the feathered variety, of course!"

Stevens Quits; DD Counsel Heads Army

WASHINGTON.—Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens' resignation, effective the latter part of July, was accepted by President Eisenhower this week.

The President immediately named Wilber M. Brucker, presently general counsel of the Defense Department, to succeed Mr. Stevens.

Stevens said he would work out the exact date he would leave — "for certain personal consideration" — with Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson.

Stevens has been Army secretary for nearly 2½ years. His resignation has been frequently rumored since the notorious Army-McCarthy investigations last fall.

Brucker has served as the Defense Department's chief legal officer since April 1954. He is a former governor of Michigan.

82d's Chief of Staff

FORT BRAGG, N. C.—Col. Kenneth E. Eckland, former 505th Abn. Inf. Regimental Commander is the 82d Abn. Div.'s new chief of staff. He replaces Col. Nathaniel R. Hoskot, who is scheduled to attend the Air University at Maxwell AFB, Ala.

Heads Far East Nurses

WASHINGTON.—Lt. Col. Nina M. Baker, has been named chief of the Army nursing service in the Far East, succeeding Lt. Col. Katharine V. Jolliffe who has returned to this country to be chief of the nursing service, Second Army headquarters, Fort Meade, Md.

Chaplain for Hood

FORT HOOD, Tex. — Chaplain (Maj.) Richard A. Malley has been assigned to the 4th Armd. Div. Arty. at North Fort Hood. His last assignment was with the 9th Infantry Division in Europe.

Jewish Chapel Center Dedicated at Fort Dix

FORT DIX, N. J.—Fort Dix's new Jewish Chapel Center, one of the first of its kind in the Army, was formally dedicated here under the sponsorship of the Philadelphia Jewish Welfare Board. An open house followed the dedication ceremonies.

Maj. Gen. John W. Harmony, commanding general of Fort Dix and its 69th Inf. Div., cut the tape, opening the chapel annex for public view. Special guests at the dedication included Edwin L. Davis, mayor of Wrightstown, N. J., and Chaplain (Col.) John K. Connelly, post and division chaplain.

Maj. Herman Dicker, Fort Dix Jewish chaplain who directed the chapel center project, said that the chapel annex would be used by the soldiers for recreation and also to assist them in carrying out their religious obligations.

The building was renovated and remodeled from non-government funds, contributions of Jewish individuals and organizations in the Fort Dix locale, and donations from the military congregation. Its interior includes fluorescent lighting, a library, lobby area and a kitchen.

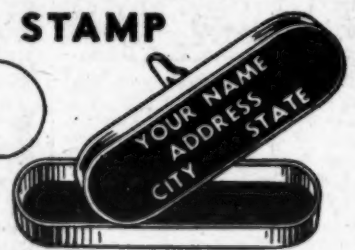

All troops at Fort Dix, regardless of denomination, have been invited to use the facilities.

Shortly before the dedication, a soldier walked into the chaplain's office, told Maj. Dicker he heard donations were in order, extracted $100 from his wallet, laid it on the chaplain's desk, and walked out.

New Pay System Undergoes Test

monthly pay. He said this was kept in mind during the test's development.

EIGHTEEN MONTHS "in the works," the new pay system is designed to correct the biggest faults of the present system. Finance Corps surveys have found these to be:

- Lack of information on his pay status available to the payee.
- Large quantity of records and equipment required by Finance in the field for pay of troops.
- Large number of people needed to staff a finance office or section.
- Unsatisfactory methods in paying casualties, particularly men separated from their records by evacuation for wounds.

The new system—which FC emphasizes is subject to test in both its methods and its use of forms—offers complete solutions to the first three of these faults, planners believe. In the fourth case, the system offers improvement, at least.

If adopted, the new system would revolve around two new forms—the Military Pay Voucher and the Request for Pay Action. These would replace a large number of forms currently in use, including the Military Pay Record, the Pay Roll and various transfer forms.

If found to be workable it could be put into effect throughout the Army one year from now.

HERE IS THE TEST SCHEDULE:

1. A "dry run" or parallel test is being conducted at Dix, based on the records of troops of the 364th Infantry, 69th Div. This is expected to continue through September. No payments will be made using the new system. But every other element of the system except actual cash payment will be tested alongside the present system.

2. Results of the parallel test will be evaluated. Ideally, this will be done by Dec. 1. The Army will then have a month to train additional men in using the new system, to begin an actual replacement test on Jan. 1, 1956.

3. The replacement test will try out the complete system and will probably run six months. However, if before that time it appears to the observer team that major bugs have been worked out, it may receive approval and be ordered into effect before the replacement test is completed.

No units have yet been chosen for the replacement test.

The new system will affect the individual soldier principally in the two new forms.

The Military Pay Voucher will be prepared each month, in five copies, by the unit personnel office. Four copies will go to the Finance Office, where the amount of pay to each man will be computed. One copy of the voucher will be kept by the personnel office to serve as a work sheet in making out the pay roll request for the following month.

The four remaining copies will be processed by the finance office. One will be retained. The other three will be returned with the pay roll to the unit in which the soldier is being paid.

Of the three copies that go back to the unit, one will go into the man's field 201 file. One will go to the man being paid. The first copy will be signed by the man, returned to the finance office, which will forward it to the Finance Center.

Along with this will go, a certification sheet for each pay roll, on which will appear various totals.

By getting a copy of his pay voucher each time he is paid, every man will know exactly how his pay was figured, what deductions were made, how much remains in his pay account.

Since the personnel office makes out his pay voucher, any changes in his status—for example, his marriage, promotion, foggy, station allowance, allotments—all will be entered on the voucher as they occur. Documents supporting these changes will be sent by personnel to finance when the total pay roll is sent up once a month.

PLANNERS EXPECT that personnel will be able to take on this additional work with little or no increase in the number of men.

At finance, the reduced work load will enable the Finance section to cut its personnel by one-half.

In addition, finance will not have to carry the records and equipment that now makes a move into the field of a division finance office a major logistical task. Planners hope that one truck and a jeep will replace the convoy needed to move a finance section in the field today.

By substituting the voucher for the military pay record system, the Army will have at the Finance Center a record, no more than six weeks behind, of every man's pay status. Under the pay record system now in use, the Finance Center's information is sometimes eight months behind.

No longer will Finance officers have to close and open a new pay record on each man every six months. A continuing record will be in each man's field 201 file at all times. So long as a man has his records with him, he will be able to get an accurate pay.

Thus not only does the system cut down on machinery, personnel, and give each man complete information on his pay every month—it also reduces the danger of his not being paid because he has been separated from his pay record.

WHEN A MAN is moved, his personnel record with his pay record, and a separate pay record, will go with him. If one is lost, he can be paid from the other.

Since each man will receive a pay voucher, showing the amount carried forward in his pay account each month, he can, if without his pay and personnel records, present that to a finance office complete with the finance officer's stamp, to prove his pay status.

A temporary pay voucher system, accurate to all but a month's pay at the worst, and perhaps absolutely accurate, can be set up for him. There need be no interruption in pay for the man who keeps his pay vouchers from month to month.

The one exception applies to men in combat. They will see their pay vouchers, but will not keep them, because of their intelligence value to the enemy. The vouchers will be kept in the rear. As soon as a man comes out of combat, his vouchers will be given to him.

THE MILITARY pay voucher system is only one of the two important new documents in the new pay system. The other is the Request for Pay Action.

Six different pay actions can be requested.

They are:

1. Request to be paid less than the amount due. This is possible today, but difficult to do. Under the new system, a man will go into the orderly room, ask for the form. He'll fill it out. The form will be passed to the unit commander (company or battery commander) for approval or disapproval. After that, it goes to the personnel section for use as a supporting document in making up the monthly pay roll.

2. He can use the form to ask for a check payment during absence. If he is going on leave or on TDY over pay day, he can ask that he be paid by check, to be sent to a specific address. Two or three days after pay day, he'll get his check in the mail.

3. He can use the form to ask for a withdrawal from his Soldier Deposit. He must give a good reason for such an emergency withdrawal. But the important point here is that the man's unit commander will approve or disapprove the request. Today, such a request must frequently be approved by battalion or regimental commander.

Idea here is to give the unit commander back his authority to control and know the problems of his own men. Every aspect of the new system is geared to this idea.

4. Finally, the man can request partial pay, advance pay on PCS or advance travel pay. These three are included as item D in the new form.

Thus, the principal pay actions in which a man is involved can be covered by just two forms—the pay voucher and the pay action request.

THE THREE-MAN TEAM headed by Col. Parker began work on the new system Nov. 16, 1953. The other officers were Capt. Norfleet R. Check, FC, and Col. Sidney S. Sogard, AGC. The latter, in April 1954, was replaced by Capt. Richard P. Koch, AGC.

Results of their work were finally put on paper for presentation in March. Since then, it has been studied at increasingly higher levels until approved and ordered to the test.

Backing the system particularly strongly—besides Maj. Gen. Bickford E. Sawyer, Army Chief of Finance—has been the Army Comptroller, Lt. Gen. Laurin L. Williams.

The latter has organized a special observation and evaluation team to watch the tests. It will suggest any changes it thinks are needed. Its members have been drawn from the General Accounting Office, the Office of the Secretary of Defense, and various Army staff agencies.

FEDERAL SERVICE

- Work Transfer Plans Studied
- Pay Protection Hearing Due
- Health Bill to Be Pushed

By DAVE POLLARD

EVEN before Congress finished wrapping up the pay raise for classified employees—as it was expected to do late this week—the lawmakers were turning their attention to other important aspects of the federal service.

Not all of the attention was particularly welcomed by leaders of government employee groups, however.

Specifically, the Senate Appropriations Committee has modified a House-approved provision in the Defense Department budget bill barring the transfer to private industry of certain kinds of work performed by civilian federal employees.

As okayed by the House, the provision would have barred transfers of work "traditionally" performed by civilian employees unless justified before "appropriate" committees of Congress—meaning the Armed Services Committees.

The Senate version isn't quite as strong.

It specifies that the work must have been performed "for a period of 25 years or more" and would permit any such transfers to go through if "certified" by the Secretary of Defense to the House and Senate Appropriations Committees.

In effect, the Defense Department would only have to report such changes before they were made. And if the transfer involved work done by Defense civilians for a period of less than 25 years, Congress wouldn't even have to be told about it.

Leaders of government employee groups are studying the Senate version to see how much effect it might have on the Administration's campaign to transfer as much work as possible to private industry.

Understandably, they prefer the House version, and they hope the stronger language will be left in when House-Senate conferees meet to find a compromise.

THERE IS a strong indication that the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee will give early study to a measure to prevent salary cuts to employees who have two or more years of service before they are downgraded.

Author of the plan, which is welcomed by government employee organizations, is Rep. John Lesinski, (D., Mich.) Although he failed to get the measure tacked onto the classified pay raise bill, he is determined to get the committee to commit itself one way or the other this year.

It is reported that the Civil Service Committee approves the plan generally but would prefer to handle the situation by administrative regulation.

Lesinski is holding out for legislation, which he sees as the only way to make sure that the proposed policy is carried out.

TWO OTHER PLANS talked up by the Administration for some months but left hanging until the basic pay bills were out of the way are now to be pushed with a vigor.

One of them calls for a voluntary low-cost group hospitalization and health insurance program for all federal employees.

Under the plan which will be proposed, the government would pay one-third of the cost of each employee's coverage.

Total cost for an employee with a family would be $156 a year, of which the government would pay $52. Single employees would pay $39 a year, to which the government would add $19.50.

Approval of the plan this year appears to be unlikely, but prospects for next year are believed favorable.

THE OTHER plan soon to be proposed would benefit most government workers only indirectly.

It would lift the $14,800 salary ceiling on classified and postal salaries and bring the pay of top-grade employees into line with the $22,500 a year which Congress voted for itself.

Effect of the move would be to permit an upward adjustment—eventually—all down the line.

For the past several years, every single pay raise granted government workers has narrowed the gap between pay grades, since those at the very top could not be increased at all.

Monument to 1st Armored

A LASTING tribute to the 1st Armd. Div.'s participation in War II has been completed at Fort Hood, Tex., by men of the division's 16th Armd. Engr. Bn. The memorial above shows battle routes of the division in North Africa and Italy along with plaques noting unit decorations. Sgt. Gerald D. Peek, right, and Pvt. William A. Kennelley were leaders in designing and constructing the monument.

Officer Makes Own Pool

CHARLESTON AFB, S. C. — A member of the 86th Air Transport Sq. Capt. Van Kesteren recently fell victim to the do-it-yourself craze and constructed an "old swimmin' hole" in his own backyard.

Having a pool at one's doorstep is for a select few, but according to Captain Van Kesteren one can be obtained with a bit of fortitude and a fair supply of hard labor.

The captain was able to build his pool between trips to Europe and North Africa as a member of the Military Air Transport Service.

All members of Captain Van Kesteren's family which include his wife, Virginia, and his two daughters, Ginnie Lee and Debby, are appreciative of their private beach.

Captain Van Kesteren's pool is no Hollywood spectacle, but for the 400 dollars invested it will certainly pay off in family and friends' dividends. Of the four hundred dollars it took to build the pool, just 33 dollars were spent on outside labor with the remainder being spent on materials.

The pool is 12 feet wide and 27 feet long. It is five feet deep with a small wading pool at one end for the kids.

A well was drilled in the yard to be used as the pool's source of water.

Yuma Test Station Warns Against Duds

YUMA TEST STATION, Ariz.—A campaign is in effect throughout the entire Sixth Army area warning inhabitants of areas bordering on Army camps, or former Army camps, of the extreme danger of the handling or disturbance of unexploded artillery shells, grenades, and land mines.

The firing line of the Yuma Test Station artillery range is located about one-half mile east of Arizona Highway 93, beginning just south of the Country Well and extending north approximately six miles. Firing is done entirely within the range which extends for 35 miles to the east of the firing line. At its widest point the artillery range is located approximately eight miles north of U. S. Highway 80.

There are an additional 15 miles beyond the range that are closed off as a danger area.

Test teams firing on the range always station artillery observers in a position where they can normally command a view of all shells fired. However, in some cases shells will land and not explode in a spot where observers cannot accurately judge the position. It is here the danger lies.

After such a shell has landed, every effort is made to locate it. But with desert terrain making such searches extremely difficult, some shells are not discovered. Usually, a shell will strike the ground with such speed that most of it will be buried in the sand, leaving just the tail or rear extremity exposed. This makes them difficult to locate and greatly increases the danger of their accidentally being stepped on.

Lt. D. D. Rhode, Yuma Station's acting post ordnance officer, points out that in some cases merely a drop of rain falling on a "dud" can set it off.

DURING WAR II, several Army divisions were trained for desert warfare in the Arizona and California deserts surrounding this vicinity. It is not known exactly where artillery was fired during these years and consequently unexploded shells that have never been discovered are still lying around the desert.

Rock hunters, prospectors, game hunters or persons just making a trip into the desert will come across "duds" occasionally, and by not being fully aware of the dangers involved can either be killed or severely injured should the shell explode.

In the event an unexploded shell is discovered, a report should be made immediately to Lieutenant Rhode. "But," says the lieutenant, "under no circumstances should persons discovering a shell pick it up or in any way molest it. Try to memorize the location of the shell and direction to it, place a marker nearby and report it to me immediately." Telephone number of the Yuma Test Station Ordnance Section is SU 3-8321, Ext. 308.

Recruit Form

To make things easier on everybody, Army Times presents below a simplified form for the use of recruits.

Experts have long agreed that recruits always have a lot to say that isn't worth listening to. Why not let them get it off their chests without boring everyone within earshot?

Here's the idea: one of these forms is handed the recruit as soon as he's sworn in. He holds it for a couple of weeks (keeping quiet for the same period), and at the end of that time fills out the form.

Then he hangs it on the foot of his bunk for all to see and disregard.

The recruit is supposed to cross out all but one of the statements in the brackets below. Here is the form, divided into well-worn departments:

• WOMEN:

"Things are looking up. When I left home I parted from the (sweetest, most beautiful, love-liest) girl in the world. But (the other night, last week, today) I met a (dream, vision, movie star-let). Am I (happy, overjoyed, in a trance)!! She says she (likes, loves, has affection for) me."

• UNIFORM:

"This (blasted, goldarn, here) uniform doesn't fit! The guy says (I'll grow into it, they have two sizes too large and too small ha-ha, it's the only one he has left). Can I see the (tailor, captain, general) about it?"

• FOOD:

"The food is okay but (there's not enough of it, the diet ain't varied, I don't like the mess steward). Boy, can my (mother, Aunt Bessie, girl) cook! How often do we get (ice cream, pie, cigarettes)?"

• WORK:

"I tell you the (drill, fatigue, K. P.) is killing me! I am (being picked on, in the doghouse) all around. If they don't let up on me I will (quit, go over the hill, tell that so-and-so off)."

• RIFLE:

"Look at this (old, greasy, broken-down, 1776 model, cheesy) gun they gave me!"

• SALUTES:

"Do I have to salute the (colonel, captain, major, sergeant, corporal, cook, company clerk, topkick, lieutenant)?"

• OFFICERS:

"I wish I got a commission instead of just enlisting. Who does the (captain, sergeant, lieutenant) think he is? He (insulted, sneered at, handed a bawling-out to) me."

• THE PAST:

"In my hometown I'm a (32d degree Mason, boy scout, volunteer fireman, mean son-of-a-gun). They (respect, appreciate, like, are afraid of) me back home."

• PAY:

"Gosh, only $78 a month! How do they expect a guy to (buy cigarettes, take a girl out, get his pants fixed) on that? On the outside, $78 was a (mere bagatelle, drop in the bucket, day's pay) to me."

• TRANSFER:

"I want a transfer!" CHECK ONE: (Yes, but I won't get it. No, because I know I won't get it.)

WHEELER, STEVENS SET PACE

5th Army To Wood

FORT RILEY, Kans.—Led by triple crown winners Ted Wheeler and Willie Stevens, Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., won its second consecutive Fifth Army track and field meet here last week by edging Fort Carson, Colo., 76-72.

Wheeler, Wood track coach, won the half-mile, mile, and three mile runs. Stevens won the 120 high hurdles, hop-step-jump, and the 220 low hurdles.

In team totals, Fort Riley was third with 31 points while Hqs. Fifth Army had 15 and Granite City Engr. Depot 0.

Fort Wood held a slim 71-69 lead going into the final event of the meet, the one mile run. Carson needed a victory over Wheeler for a tie.

GENE MATTHEWS made a gallant bid halfway through the last lap of the mile for Carson and went into the lead with 220 yards to go. However, Wheeler came on to win by an eyelash. Bob Kelly of Fifth Army Hqs. was third and fast-finishing John Lovette of Carson 4th in a close finish. Earlier Kelly won the two-mile steeplechase.

Double winners included Del Swearingen of Wood who won the discus and javelin, Wood's John Bennett who won the broad jump and tied for first in the high jump with Fort Riley's Jim Long, and Carson's Bill Kelly who took the 220 and 440 yard dashes.

STEVENS smashed his own high hurdle mark of 14.7 by a tenth of a second, bettered the hop-step-and-jump standard by 5-8" with a jump of 41' 5 5/8" and broke his own low hurdles clocking with a time of :24 flat.

Wheeler with a 15:00.4 time in the three mile, Del Swearingen with a discus heave of 157' 3/4", and John Bennett with a 23' 2 3/4" broad jump were the other Fort Wood representatives breaking Fifth Army records.

Fort Carson's Vince Gattulo with a 155' 7 1/2" hammer throw and Carson shot putter Bob McMachen with a 46' 10" heave also established new marks. Frank Robinson of Fort Carson tied his record of :10.1 for the 100 yard dash set last year.

Carson's Harry Creely and Bob Murphy, competing unopposed in the triathlon competition, run concurrently with the track and field events, took first and second honors in the triangular novelty. Creely, despite a disastrous score with the pistol, came back strong in swimming and the two mile run to amass a winning total of 1,250 points.

GEORGE (MULE) HAAS, Fort Monmouth baseball and basketball coach, will be honored with other famous stars of the old Philadelphia Athletics at Kansas City July 20. Mule was recently named by the A's as the club's all-time centerfielder. Haas was one of the stars on Connie Mack's 1929-31 pennant winners along with Cochrane, Simmons, Foxx and Grove. Haas has been athletic coach and consultant at Monmouth since 1951.

Summer Football Drill

Above, three returning stars from last year's team go over a play, from left: guard Bruce Halladay (San Jose State), Army Times All-Army quarterback Jim Powers, and Army Times All-Army end Stan Wacholz (both formerly with the San Francisco 49ers). The Warriors hope to recapture the national service title they won in 1953. Among the newcomers on the team this year is UCLA All-American halfback Paul Cameron, who is expected to prove one of the squad's most valuable members.

THIRTEEN NEW MARKS SET

Sill Wins 4th Army Track, Hood's Atterberry Stars

FORT SAM HOUSTON, Tex.—New records were set in 13 of the 21 events in the Fourth Army track, field and triathlon meet here last week as a strong Fort Sill team took first place with 95 1/2 points. The defending champions from Brooke Army Medical Center were third with 45 points behind second-place Fort Hood with 82 1/2 points.

Fort Hood's Willie Atterberry was named the outstanding athlete of the meet.

His 53.6 time in the 440 intermediate hurdles shaved 3.1 seconds off the old Fourth Army mark. Atterberry also cracked the 880-yard run with 1:54.2, 4.1 seconds faster than the 1954 performance of former Olympic star Henry Cryer. Atterberry also won the 440-yard dash.

And as anchor man for the Hood one-mile relay team, Atterberry came from behind to help set a team record of 3:22.1 in this event, 1.1 seconds off the 1954 time set by Brooke Medical Center.

FORT HOOD coach Glenn Beerline also broke two records. His broad jump of 23 feet 1 1/2 inches was two inches better than the record he set last year.

Another outstanding performance was turned in by Fort Sill's William Burton, the only Army man on the 1948 Olympic squad. Burton broke his old hammer throw record by 20 feet 4 inches with a 161 foot 4 inch toss.

Burton also won the discus with a distance of 146 feet 3 inches.

Ralph Bonham of Brooke, the defending All-Army high jumper, went over the bar at 6 1/2 feet to break his old Fourth Army record of last year by one inch. His 6-6 jump ties the height with which he set the 1954 All-Army mark.

In the shotput, Brooke's Wallace Tanner, former University of Colorado star, heaved the 16 pound iron ball 50 feet 2 and 3/4 inches.

EARL KAISER of Fort Sill shot over the 120 yard high hurdles in 14.8 seconds to cut his old Fourth Army record by .6 of a second.

In the 100-yard dash, another member of last year's great Fort Sill football team, Robert Green, chopped his old Fourth Army record by .1 of a second, blasting across the tape in 9.4. Green also took the 220 yard dash in 21.1 seconds.

Charles Stieff tossed the javelin 176 feet one inch to give Sandia Base its only victory.

Joseph Corley of Fort Bliss broke the old 220 yard low hurdles record by 1.2 seconds with a 23.5 seconds time.

New records were also set in the 880 yard relay; and the 440 yard relays by the Fort Sill team. New time for the 880 yard relay was 1:54.2. New time for the 440 was 42.6.

Devens Wins 1st Army Meet

Lingel, Coulter, Maynard, Star

FORT DEVENS, Mass.—Led by Lt. Jim Lingel, former Ivy league 440 champion, Fort Devens defeated a favored Fort Monmouth team in the annual First Army track and field championships held here last week.

Devens compiled a score of 78 points compared with Monmouth's 63, and Fort Dix, N. J., a pre-meet threat finished third with a total of 43.

Lingel contributed 10 points to the Devens total by winning the 440 and 220 yard dashes against some tough competition. In winning the 440 he outran such nationally rated stars as Lt. Gene Maynard, Big Ten 880 champ, and PFC Earl Grim, recent NYAC 880 winner. Lingel's time for the distance was 49.1, an amazing speed on a track that was heavy after twenty four hours of steady rain. He captured the 220 in the highly respectable time of 21.3 seconds.

Another outstanding performer in the meet, PFC Tom Coulter of the Fort Dix team, defended his First Army steeplechase and 3 mile titles. A former University of Syracuse star and metropolitan steeplechase champion for NYAAU, Coulter won both events handily, lapping the entire field in both races. His time for the 3 mile run was 15:24, and his steeplechase time 11:9.5.

PROBABLY the turning point of the meet was the unexpected victory by Pvt. Bill Miller and Pvt. Dan Perrow, both of Devens, over

Bobby Maxwell, Billy's Twin, Wins Tourney

CAMP CHAFFEE, Ark.—PFC Bobby Maxwell defeated SFC Earl Mitchell recently in the finals of the Fort Smith, Ark., city golf tournament.

In the all-soldier finals at Fort Smith's Rolling Knolls Country club, Chaffee's Maxwell sank his putt on the 16th green to turn back Chaffee's Mitchell, 3 and 2 for the city title.

Maxwell, brother of former All-Army champ, Billy Maxwell, now a famous pro, ousted the defending champion, Cpl. Joe Moresco, former Notre Dame golf star, 4 and 3 in the quarter finals of the tourney.

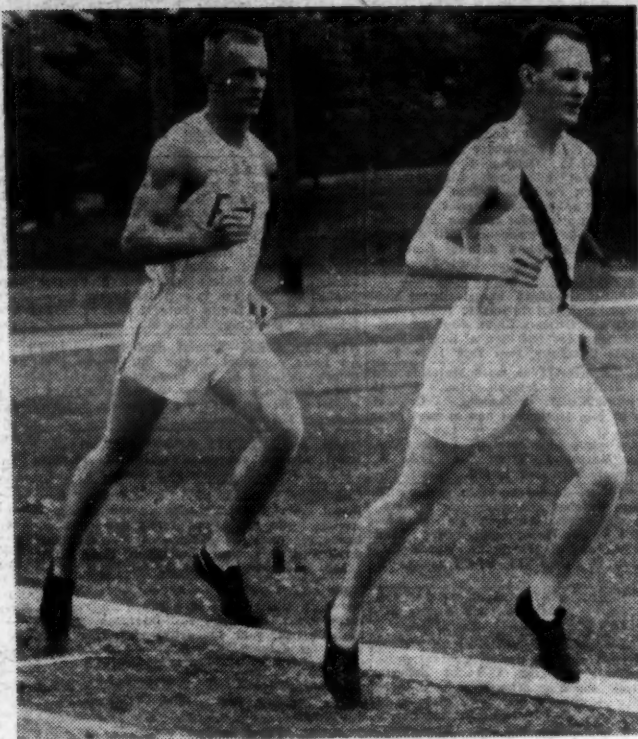

Mitchell, Maxwell and Moresco have won more than a score of major golf meets since coming to Chaffee.

Wood's Wheeler Sets Mile Mark at Iowa

FORT LEONARD WOOD, Mo.—Wood's track and field team suffered its second loss to a powerful Iowa University team, 76-46, but rebounded five days later with an 80-51 decision over Fort Carson, Colo. At Iowa, Wood's Ted Wheeler, with a 4:13.3 mile, broke his own record of 4:15.7 which he established at Iowa in 1953. Wheeler also won the 880, tying the record of 1:54.3 set by Egbert of Iowa in 1954.

Willie Stevens also set a new record in the 120 high hurdles with a time of 14.5.

John Bennett, Wood's high and broad jump specialist, established a new field record in the broad jump with a distance of 24 feet, 8 3/4 inches.

First Army Triathlon Star

LT. JEROME FUREY of Fort Devens is shown out in front in the two mile run, final event of the First Army triathlon. Furey racked up a fine total of 2700 points (out of a possible 3000) to win easily. Trailing Furey in the picture above is Fort Monmouth's Pvt. Charles Brooks, second in the two mile run but third for the entire event. The triathlon also includes a pistol shoot and swimming.

PFC Bill Robinson of Monmouth in the 220 yard low hurdles. Robinson, a protege of the great Jesse Owens and grid star of the Green Bay Packers, finished third behind the two Devens men. He was expected to win all hurdle events.

Lt. Gene Maynard of Monmouth showed how he became Big Ten 880 champ by winning the mile and half mile and finishing second in the quarter mile. Not pushed, he ran a comparatively slow mile, 4:42.5.

LT. JEROME FUREY, Fort Devens, scored a fine total of 2700 points of a possible 3000 in the triathlon. This event is a composite score of a pistol shoot, 220 yard freestyle swimming race, and two mile run. The results of this event do not count towards the team scores.

Col. Edwin W. Grenelle, Chief of Staff for Fort Devens, presented the winners with watches, traveling bags and wallets.

THE ARMY AND THE OLYMPICS

All-Army Flyweight Champ
Good Bet to Make Olympics

(Another in a series of articles dealing with Army athletes who may represent the United States in the 1956 Olympic Games in Australia.)

By CPL. ARTHUR RUBIN

FORT SHAFTER, T. H.—Heiji Shimabukuro, Fort Shafter's sensational flyweight, hopes to box in the 1956 Olympics before turning pro.

Shimabukuro, the 1955 National AAU and All-Army flyweight king, has already been offered a pro contract by Sid Flaherty, manager of world middleweight champion Bobo Olson.

Winner of 50 amateur bouts in the last two years—with more than half by the kayo route—Shimabukuro was the "Golden Boy" in both the All-Army tournament at Oakland Army Base and the Nationals at Kansas City, Mo.

SHIMABUKURO gives the Army credit for making a polished boxer of him. He was just another young hopeful with stars in his eyes before Capt. Norman Newman, USARPAC boxing team coach, and Ken Muira, team trainer, took over his realm.

A local boy, Shimabukuro came into the Army direct from Farrington High School in Jan., 1954, and took his basic training at Schofield Barracks.

His best punch, a right hook, is responsible for putting most of his knockout victims to sleep. He also pointed out that he has a pretty good left jab, too.

Twenty-year-old Shimabukuro takes his training as seriously as he does his fighting in the ring. He spends more than three hours a day sparring and working on the heavy bag.

WHILE IN the Army, he has fought on the Mainland three times, twice at Oakland Army Base and once at Kansas City. It was during his first Oakland fight that a scout saw him and recommended him to Flaherty.

His toughest fight occurred in the Nationals when he fought defending flyweight champ Charlie Branch in the semifinals. He decided Branch in a bruising battle.

The Nationals was Shimabukuro's final tournament as a soldier, and for the next few months he intends to put on exhibition bouts for local charities and smokers.

PFC Webb Wins
Camp Haugen Open

CAMP HAUGEN, Japan.—The 77th FA Bn. dominated the Camp Haugen Open golf tournament, as PFC James E. Webb and 1st Lt. John W. Baxendale won first place and runner-up honors respectively. Webb wound up with a 320 total for the 72-hole tourney to nose out Baxendale by three strokes.

Zingg Hurls Shutout

FORT MONMOUTH, N. J.—Monmouth's home opener here last weekend found Harry Zingg blanking McGuire AFB 5-0. Zingg is a 19-year-old righthander from Montclair, N. J., High School. He fanned 12. It was the first time in five years that Monmouth had won its home opener at Greely Field. All six hits off Zingg were singles.

Ping Pong Champ

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky.—PFC Eddie Lindsey of the 511th Medical Co. recently won the Fort Campbell table tennis championship. Second Lt. Ken Wagstaff and 1st Lt. Charles Sullivan of Divarty won the doubles crown.

IN ALL-ARMY MEET

Eleven New Track Records

MANHATTAN, Kans.—Eleven new records were set during the annual All-Army track and field championships at the Kansas State College stadium here last weekend.

Rod Richard of Fort Lee, Va., set two new All-Army marks. First the Second Army star cracked the 100-yard dash record established by Jim Golliday by two-tenths of a second. Richard's time was 9.5. Then the former UCLA sprinter topped both the All-Army and Inter-Service marks in the 220-yard dash when he scooted across in 20.9. The former All-Army mark was 21.4.

JOE LAPIERRE, another Fort Lee track ace, set a new mile record of 4:07.4 as he finished 14 yards ahead of Fort MacArthur's Fred Dwyer. Dwyer beat LaPierre for the 1C-4A championship when both were collegians.

LaPierre's time also bettered the Inter-Service record and it was the fastest mile ever run in the Kansas State stadium. Wayne Robins of Eighth Army, Far East, was third in the mile.

Lanky Ted Wheeler of Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., set a new mark in the 880 yard run as he raced across the finish line in 1:50.3, which also bettered the best Inter-Service time. The old All-Army mark was 1:53.2 set by Sixth Army's Lang Stanley. Fourth Army's Willie Atterberry was second and Stanley was third.

ATTERBERRY, one of Fort Hood's top hopes for the 1956 Olympic team, set a new All-Army mark in the 440 yard hurdles of 53.2. Former record of 54.5 was set in 1953 by Harry Bright.

Olin Mickleberg of Third Army ran the 440 in 48.6 for another new All-Army record. Old mark was Jim Lingel's 49.6.

Lee Calhoun, Eighth Army, chalked up a new All-Army standard in the 220 yard low hurdles of 23.2. Old mark was Charles Holloway's 23.6.

BRUCE DRUMMOND of Fort Sill, Okla., ran the two mile steeplechase in 10:30.1 to better the former All-Army mark of 10:40.9 held by Fifth Army's Phil Coleman. Robert Kelly of Fifth Army was second and George Tucker of Second Army was third.

John (Papa) Hall of Fort Jackson, S. C., did what was expected in the high jump as he made 6 feet 7 1/2 inches to nullify the former All-Army and Inter-Service records. Charles McCullough of Third Army and Ralph Bonham of Fourth Army tied for second place honors. Former mark of 6 feet 6 1/2 inches was held by Brooke Medical Center's Bonham.

WILLIE HOLLIE of the European team racked up a new All-Army mark in the hop-step-and-jump of 49 feet 6 1/2 inches. Glenn Beerline of Fourth Army was second and Third Army's James Stookey was third. The former mark of 47 feet 10 1/2 inches was set by Walter Ashbaugh in 1952.

Willie Stevens of Fort Leonard Wood cracked his own All-Army record in the 120 yard high hurdles. Last year he made it in 14.9. This year his time was 14.3. The Inter-Service mark is 14.2. Lee Calhoun was second.

THE TRIATHLON event (pistol, 220-yard swim, two-mile run) found Edgar O'Hair of the European Command team on top with 2801 points. First Army's Jerome Furey was second with 2692 and Third Army's Alan Wadsworth was third with 2574.

In other events: Joseph Chadburne of Fort McPherson took the 16-pound hammer throw with a mighty heave of 167 feet and 1/4 inches. The
